Merlin Entertainments has revealed London as its preferred location for a planned initial public offering (IPO), after its turnover topped £1bn for the first time during 2012.

At a presentation of its annual results on 27 March, the attractions operator revealed total visitor numbers were up 16 per cent on 2011 at 54m and revenue had risen 15 per cent to £1.074bn.

Speaking to Bloomberg news, chief executive Nick Varney said he made no secret that the group’s preference was to list in the UK – a move planned by 2014.

However, he said 20 per cent of all Merlin’s business is in North America and all options would be considered. As far back as 2007, Varney has announced several times that the group planned a market flotation but these have been delayed each time due to the poor economic climate. Varney said 2012 was the 13th consecutive year the group had beat its profit target.

Budget 2013: help for pubs and SMEs

The chancellor George Osborne has scrapped the annual alcohol duty escalator and cut the price of a pint of beer by 1p from 24 March.

The move aims to help out the UK’s pub sector - although Osborne confirmed that a planned duty increase for other forms of alcohol would still go ahead.

There will also be help for small and medium-sized businesses with the introduction of the new Employment Allowance.

The new scheme will take the first £2,000 off the employer National Insurance bill of every company in the country, meaning that around 450,000 small businesses will pay no employer National Insurance at all. The scheme will be extended to all charities and community sports clubs, which often rely on part-time staff. The chancellor also announced new tax reliefs for the creative industries.

West Ham United Football Club (WHU) will be the new anchor tenant of the London Olympic Stadium following the government’s agreement to contribute a further £25m towards converting the venue. WHU was chosen as the preferred bidder for the tenancy in December 2012 but the signing of the deal was dependent on a number of financial and commercial terms being agreed upon.

It is believed that as part of the negotiations, WHU has also agreed to increase its contribution towards the conversion project from £10m to £15m.

The deal means that the proposed conversion of the stadium - which involves reducing the seating capacity from 80,000 to around 55,000 to 60,000 - can now go ahead.

The redevelopment of the venue and the planned use of retractable seating will allow the stadium to operate as both an athletics and football arena. WHU has signed a 99-year lease for the venue and is hoping to move into the stadium in time for the 2016-17 season. Karren Brady, WHU vice chair said: “A capacity of at least 54,000 seats will place WHU among the top five attended clubs in the Premier League.”

British Cycling aims to get 1m more women cycling

British Cycling plans to have 1m more women cycling in the UK by 2020 by shifting the culture and accessibility of the sport, it has revealed in a new document: ‘A Journey of Inspiration and Opportunity - Our Vision for women’s cycling 2013-2020’

The organisation wants increased female membership, more women riding competitively and more women involved in the governing of the sport.

In 2012 525,000 UK women were regularly cycling. Details: http://lei.sr?a=u3b8B

Sunderland college to get sports facility

Sunderland College is to undertake a multi-million pound project to improve sports and arts facilities that includes a new three-storey sports centre.

The project, which will be developed by Bam Construction, will see the demolition of several buildings at the college’s Bede Campus to make way for the new sports centre and a new visual and performing arts building. The 1,205 sq m (12,970 sq ft) sports centre will include a four-court sports hall, a fitness suite, a sports science laboratory, classrooms and changing facilities.

Also on three storeys, the visual and performing arts building will provide a performance hall, dance and drama studios; music, photography and media classrooms; recording studios; and art facilities.

Work is due to start on site in April 2013 and be completed by August 2014. Both new buildings will focus on sustainability. Details: http://lei.sr?a=LoT7G
£150m boost for school sport

The government has confirmed it will make an extra £150m-a-year investment in PE and school sport over the next two years.

As reported in Leisure Opportunities on 13 March, the ring-fenced money will be jointly provided by the Department for Education, Department for Health and DCMS and will see money going directly to primary school headteachers to spend on improving the quality of sport and PE.

Funding for each school will be calculated by the number of primary-aged pupils based on January 2013 figures and schools will have to spend the money on improving their provision of PE and sport.

All schools with 17 or more primary-aged pupils will receive a lump sum of £8,000 plus a premium of £5 per pupil. Smaller schools will receive £500 per pupil. Crucially, schools will have the freedom to choose how and what the money will be spent on - a decision which will provide a boost for the UK’s sports provider sector and professional coaches.

Sport England funding to tackle inactivity

Thousands of people living with and beyond cancer are among those who will be helped to get more active after Sport England announced £5.8m through its Get Healthy Get Into Sport fund.

Macmillan Cancer Support, which will receive £500,000, is one of 14 groups benefitting from funding, which comes as new research shows that the cost of inactivity to the NHS in England is £944m.

The Macmillan project will open up fresh sporting opportunities for cancer patients in 10 parts of England, including work in Oxford to help 14 to 25-year-olds with cancer to get active. Macmillan is investing a further £230,000 in the scheme. Almost 130,000 inactive people are expected to get involved in sport through the scheme, which will explore a wide range of ways to use sport to improve health.

Physical inactivity is the fourth leading risk factor for global mortality after high blood pressure, tobacco use and high blood glucose. Details: http://lei.sr?a=h8m2v

Essex indoor tennis courts get £130,000 refurbishment

Following a two-month closure for refurbishment Southend Leisure & Tennis Centre, managed by Parkwood Community Leisure, has reopened its indoor tennis courts.

The 10-week project, costing £130,000, was a partnership between Parkwood and the Southend on Sea Borough Council (SBC) and the Lawn Tennis Association (LTA). Improvements include a new lighting system, with lux levels meeting the international standard, and resurfacing of the acrylic tennis courts. Details: http://lei.sr?a=x5f9v

Sports zone improves activity levels in Watford

The first of a planned series of community facilities inspired by the legacy of London 2012 has proven successful as a way to increase levels of physical activity in communities. The Sports Legacy Zone (SLZ), created by outdoor play equipment specialists Proludic, is a play and fitness area designed for use by the community.

The first SLZ, installed in Watford’s Meriden Estate in April 2012, has significantly improved activity levels in the area. Details: http://lei.sr?a=z2a4T

Running produces 90 per cent greater weight loss

Running may be better for weight loss than walking

Running may produce more dramatic weight loss results than walking, according to research to be published in the April edition of Medicine & Science in Sports & Exercise.

The six-year study conducted an analysis of body mass index change (BMI) of 15,237 walkers and 32,216 runners, under non-experimental conditions.

In those with a BMI over 28, running produced 90 per cent greater weight loss than walking when done in the same amount. Details: http://lei.sr?a=D7H2s

Streatham leisure hub tops out

Building work on a new multi-million pound leisure development in Streatham, South London, has reached the topping out phase.

The Streatham Hub leisure complex will include a 25m, six-lane swimming pool, a 13m learner pool, a 1,000-capacity ice rink, sports courts and a health and fitness club.

Scheduled to open later this year, the mixed-use complex will also feature a Tesco Extra supermarket, 250 new homes, a local transport hub and a range of public spaces.

Built by contractor Vinci Construction and designed by Michael Aukett Architects, the centre is one of only two in the world which will include a full-sized ice rink above a swimming pool space.

The cost of the development has been largely met by Tesco with the Lambeth Council Health club operator énergie Group has secured £400,000 worth of funding from the Government’s UK Commission for Employment and Skills (UKCES) to invest in its national training programme.

The grant was made out from the Employer Ownership of Skills scheme - a competitive fund open to employers to invest in their current and future workforce in England. énergie will look to use the grant towards raising skill sets and the creation of new jobs and apprenticeships - as well as help drive enterprise and the group’s economic growth.

Karrin Simpson, training manager at the énergie Group’s National Training Centre in Milton Keynes will lead the project and manage the completion of all milestones and targets set. She said funding would enable énergie to give franchisees and their staff a greater structure of training and develop its own internal team. Details: http://lei.sr?a=v2K3n

London hosts Fit Cities forum

Leading architects, planners and city experts gathered in London last month to attend Fit Cities-Fit World – a conference organised to look at the role design and planning have in ensuring cities have healthy and active populations.

The conference, held on 18-19 March, examined and build on what was learned as a result of major infrastructure and urban developments created for the London 2012 Games, including Queen Elizabeth Park and regeneration at Stratford.

Key speakers at the event included James Corner, the landscape architect behind Manhattan’s High Line project, and David Burney and Karen Lee from New York’s Center for Active Design.

Architects and planners from Brazil and Glasgow, which are both currently planning major sporting events, also presented case studies at the conference. Mayor Boris Johnson said: “London is being transformed, with inviting public spaces to relax in, new bike routes to entice cyclists, plots of land to grow food in and facilities to boost sports participation.”

Vitamin D linked to muscle efficiency

New research reveals a link between vitamin D levels and muscle efficiency, which may explain why patients with a deficiency of the vitamin commonly experience physical fatigue.

The research, by Newcastle University, measured the response to exercise in the calf muscles of 12 patients with severe vitamin D deficiency.

The results revealed recovery significantly improved in patients who took a fixed dose of oral vitamin D for 10-12 weeks. Vitamin D is a hormone produced in the skin through exposure to sunlight, and to a lesser extent can be derived from dietary sources.

Study leader Dr Akash Sinha said: “This is the first time a link has been shown between vitamin D status and muscle aerobic function.”

The researchers hope further study will reveal the mechanisms underpinning this effect.

Large-scale art plan for Crossrail

The team behind London’s £14.8bn rail project Crossrail has revealed plans to host permanent large-scale public art across eight stations along the 118km route.

Crossrail – to be funded entirely through private sponsorship – will work with leading art organisations and commercial galleries to secure international commissions for the project, called The Cultural Line.

Crossrail, due to open in 2018, will include 37 stations spanning from Maidenhead and Heathrow in the west to Shenfield and Abbey Wood in the east.

The brief states artists should work in partnership with Crossrail’s architectural design teams and manufacturers of keynote materials for their station. Already, American artist Spencer Finch has been chosen to produce a 120m long A Cloud Index for Paddington Station, which will use a glazed station canopy to depict more than 25 types of clouds found in the British sky.

Public art curatorial consultancy Futurecity is providing specialist strategic support to the project. Details: http://lei.sr?a=v2X5W

Northern Ireland announces £13.6m of arts funding

Funding is awarded for running costs and programming. This year 15 organisations have landed the funding for the first time. Details: http://lei.sr?a=Z2V3z

Building begins on Glasgow Theatre Royal

Construction is now underway on an £11.5m project to create a dramatic new entrance at Glasgow’s Theatre Royal and provide more public space at the venue.

Earlier this year the Café Royal wing of the theatre was demolished and foundations have now been laid for the oval-shaped entrance, which will include bars, a box office, cloakrooms, toilet facilities and hospitality suites.

Lifts will also be installed for the first time to improve all areas accessibility.

Scottish cabinet secretary for culture and external affairs, Fiona Hyslop, said: “The Theatre Royal is a beautiful building and one of our nation’s major cultural assets. However, it was built in Victorian times and needs updating to meet modern needs.”

Construction is expected to last until May 2014 – before the city’s Commonwealth Games begin. Details: http://lei.sr?a=kiZ4F

Concept designs have been revealed for a £10.5m visitor centre and hostel at the Hadrian’s Wall World Heritage Site in Northumberland National Park.

Newcastle architects Jane Darbyshire and David Kendall (JDDK Architects) have been appointed to explore the initial concepts for The Sill, which will replace existing facilities built in the 1960s.

The building will act as a hub for visitors to explore more than 400sq miles of national park, including stargazing, discovering rare flora and fauna and learning traditional skills such as dry stone-walling and hedgerow laying.

Design concepts will focus heavily on sustainability, incorporating locally sourced materials, heather thatched pitched roofs and whinstone walls.

The chairman of the Royal Institution (RI) says an anonymous donation of £4.4m is enough to clear the organisation’s debt but that its financial troubles are far from being solved. Sir Richard Skyes revealed the anonymous donation at a special general meeting of the Institution’s members on 19 March.

In a Guardian column last month he revealed RI was operating with annual deficit of around £600,000 and was £5m in debt.

RI, established in 1799, is dedicated to science education and communication and includes Professor Lord Robert Winston among its members.

Its headquarters at Albemarle St include the free-entry Faraday Museum and some of the most important scientific collections and archives in the world. The headquarters were extensively refurbished in 2008 to the tune of £22m, but the project did not attract sufficient funds.

The Heritage Lottery Fund has this week awarded £704,500 for the permanent display of the largest and most valuable Anglo-Saxon treasure ever discovered at Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery. The 3,500-piece Staffordshire Hoard, which includes 7th-century gold and silver metalwork, has been on temporary display since September 2009 – two months after its discovery in a field near Lichfield. The proposed gallery will showcase approximately 300 items.

The Heritage Lottery Fund has this week awarded £71,000 to showcase the history of luxury car brand Aston Martin, which celebrates its centenary this year. The £71,000 grant allows the display of original build records, photographs, design and engineering drawings and documents relating to the car’s appearance in television and film, including the James Bond franchise.

The collection will be displayed for two years at the Heritage Motor Centre in Gaydon. Details: http://lei.sr?a=g1m1O

Visa reforms are crucial for continued growth in sector

UFI IBRAHIM is chief executive officer of British Hospitality Association

Teresa May announced that she’d be restructuring the UK Border Authority (UKBA) – this should be applauded. The need to reform the UK’s visa procedures so that they less expensive and more straightforward is absolutely critical to continued growth.

Championing the improvement of the visa system is one of our most important campaigns here at the BHA. It has now gained the support of many other organisations including the CBI, Institute of Directors and the British Chambers of Commerce.

The fact is that the UK’s overall economic competitiveness is being weakened by both international perceptions and the reality of visa policy driving business into the hands of our European competitors. To give an example, tour operators bringing Chinese tourists to Europe have been removing the UK from their tour itineraries because of the complicated need for an extra visa.

So what needs to change? We need to bring to the UK up to the European equivalent as soon as possible. More far reaching opportunities would be sharing of biometric data with the French and German governments and a ‘dual processing’ system which would allow Chinese visitors to submit their UK forms at the same time as their single European one. It’s estimated that we miss out on an £1.2bn in annual spend from Chinese tourists to Europe have been the UK from their tour itineraries because of the complicated need for an extra visa.

With the UKBA now back under Home Office control, I hope that the government is moving towards reform. It’s not just the hospitality and tourism sectors which will benefit from these changes. It is the British economy as a whole.

HOTELS

King’s Cross hotel to relaunch

London’s first railway hotel - Great Northern Hotel - will re-open in April for the first time in almost 12 years following multi-million-pound renovations.

Situated between King’s Cross Station and St Pancras International, the privately owned Grade II-listed building has been restored by owner-operator Jeremy Robson of Ram.

Originally designed by architect Lewis Cubitt, the Great Northern Hotel opened in 1854 as the first of the new generation of Victorian railway hotels. Archer Humphreys Architects were responsible for the interior design, which followed the theme of timeless elegance with a hint of modernity.

The hotel’s 91 rooms were refurbished with a Victorian inspired colour palate and three room types were created: Couchettes (which emulate train sleeper compartments); Wainscot (named after their walnut Wainscot panelling) and Cubitt (named after the architect Lewis Cubitt). The aim for the renovation was to evoke the romance of rail travel from a bygone age and to preserve a sense of history and style. Details: http://lei.sr?a=l4J6q

Shangri-La, The Shard, to open in summer this year

Details of the UK’s first Shangri-La – to occupy levels 34 to 52 of The Shard – have been revealed ahead of its opening this summer.

The five-star 202-room property will be London’s first elevated luxury hotel and promises panoramic views of nearby attractions such as the Tate Modern, the Tower of London, St. Paul’s Cathedral and Shakespeare’s Globe. Room features will include custom-made beds, iPod docking stations, complimentary high-speed internet access. Details: http://lei.sr?a=U0y7r

Malmaison and Hotel du Vin sold to KSL

US-based private equity firm KSL Capital Partners has acquired UK boutique hotel brands Malmaison and Hotel du Vin. KSL plans to invest significantly in the existing portfolio of 27 hotels and expand both hotel brands in the UK and internationally.

The investment will support the current development strategy of chief executive Gary Davis – who joined the brands in January 2012 – including the planned September opening of a new Malmaison Hotel in Dundee. There are also plans to convert an existing property in St Andrews to a Hotel du Vin by early 2014.

Davis said: “We look forward to leveraging their considerable expertise, which combined with the talent in our own senior leadership team, will further develop our leading hotel brands.” Details: http://lei.sr?a=V2O3h

UK tourism spend up 7 per cent

Tourism expenditure in the UK increased by £9bn during 20112 – a 6.9 per cent jump from £125bn to £134bn.

According to the Tourism Alliance’s 2013 Tourism Statistics Review, the £9bn increase was sufficient to generate 180,000 new jobs for the UK economy – over one third of all additional jobs generated in the UK last year.

Speaking at the launch of the report at the Houses of Parliament, Tourism Alliance chair Michael Hirst said: “This strong increase in tourism expenditure comes despite the disruption in tourism flows associated with hosting the Olympics and the fact that 2012 was the second wettest year on record.

“The overwhelming success of hosting the Olympics and the likelihood of a better summer this year means that tourism expenditure in 2013 should produce another record year.”

Hirst, however, highlighted the fact that despite the strong growth in spend, the World Economic Form recently produced a report that places the UK 138th of 140 countries worldwide in terms or tourism-related taxation.

Prince Charles to be patron of English Tourism Week

On the back of its second annual English Tourism Week, VisitEngland has announced The Prince of Wales will become the patron of the event for the next five years.

The event, which this year went from 16 to 24 March, aims to showcase the value of the tourism industry to local communities and the national economy.

Attractions, accommodation providers and tourism operators put on special events and activities aimed at inspiring Britons to explore England. Details: http://lei.sr?a=F4c4s

Irish tourism sees second year of recovery

Ireland saw 7.9 per cent growth in inbound business trips last year and 3.8 per cent growth in holiday trips, the second year of recovery for the country’s economy.

Spending by visitors increased 4.5 per cent to 3.68bn euro (£3.12bn) with a particularly strong spend from North American tourists and visitors from other long-haul destinations.

In the hotel sector the number of bednights grew by 13 per cent to 14,180,000, however, those staying with friends or family dropped 9.8 per cent to 13,331,000. Tourism Minister Leo Varadkar said as a result the government was introducing Visa Waiver Programmes and attracting new air routes to target long haul visitors. He said Ireland continued to market strongly to potential holidaymakers from these areas, because they tend to stay longer. Details: http://lei.sr?a=8݃Loz

Funds for Birmingham’s £450m city revamp

Birmingham’s £450m regeneration programme for its city centre has taken a step forward with a funding allocation of £63.1m approved for the first phase of the project.

The Paradise Circus project was one of the UK’s largest city centre outline planning applications approved last year and will include up to 10 buildings in 17 acres of land between Centenary Square and Chamberlain Square.

The funding was approved on 14 March by the Greater Birmingham & Solihull LEP (GBSLEP) board – representing a partnership of businesses, local authorities and the education sector.

The development covers an Enterprise Zone – one of 24 nationwide developed as part of a 2011 government initiative to support new and expanding businesses. The development will include offices, shops, leisure facilities and civic amenities. Details: http://lei.sr?a=S5m5g

New architecture review launched

The British government has launched an independent review of architecture and the built environment with aims to better shape policy to achieve high quality design.

The report – expected to be complete by the end of the year – will be led by London-based architect Sir Terry Farrell with support provided by an advisory panel.

In addition to the government’s role in promoting quality design the review will look at the economic benefits of architecture, cultural heritage and the built environment, and promoting education and outreach and developing skills.

Culture minister Ed Vaizey said: “Good design builds communities, creates quality of life, and makes places better for people to live, work and play in.” He urged the architecture and design industries to contribute their views when the panel issues a call for evidence shortly. Farrell is known for his work on the Home Office and Greenwich Peninsula in the UK, and Korea’s Incheon airport in Seoul and Guangzhou Station in China. Museum planned for Old Magnus Building, Newark

A new national Civil War Museum in Newark, expected to attract more than 40,000 visitors a year to the area, is set to receive a £1m boost from Nottinghamshire County Council.

The council funding will join the £3.5m Heritage Lottery Fund to go towards the £5.4m costs of the initiative.

The new museum and learning centre will be based in the Old Magnus Building, which includes a Tudor School Hall and Georgian and Victorian classrooms. Details: http://lei.sr?a=A6e80

Aberdeen to get £25m De Vere Urban Village Resort

A £25m urban village resort is to be built on the outskirts of Aberdeen as part of the Prime Four business park at Kingswells.

Scotland’s first De Vere Urban Village Resort, which was approved by members of the council’s development management sub-committee, will include a five-storey 148-bedroom hotel and a luxury health spa.

It will also house a leisure club with a gym and swimming pool as well as business and conferencing facilities and restaurants and bars. Details: http://lei.sr?a=H9h8f

London to get 100 ‘pocket parks’ in forgotten spaces

Work has started on the first of London’s ‘pocket parks’, which have received £2m of funding to transform neglected urban spaces into mini oases.

Twenty-seven ‘nooks and crannies’ in 17 boroughs were selected for the first round of funding. Benefits of the parks include improving air quality, reducing flood risk, providing shade and offering a haven for wildlife. A £30,000 edible park on dead space behind a bus stop in Stockwell will include vegetables, herbs and fruit. Details: http://lei.sr?a=k3U3D

Funding sought for £12m Flax Mill regeneration

An £11.6m funding application to regenerate Shrewsbury’s 18th-century Flax Mill Maltings for public and commercial use will be submitted to the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) by the end of March.

The site comprises seven listed buildings and includes the Main Mill, which was built in 1797 and was the world’s first iron-framed building and the forerunner of the modern skyscraper.

Other buildings to be renovated include the Kiln, the Dye, Stove House and the stables. Details: http://lei.sr?a=n8p7p

Imperial War Museum North has received a £528,700 Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) grant that will be used for a new volunteer initiative that aims to measure the impact of volunteering on health and well being.

The project aims to provide personal development opportunities to those who need help reintegrating into society. More than 225 people from diverse backgrounds – including youth and ex-service personnel – will be given the chance to become volunteers and benefit from a bespoke training programme accredited by The Manchester College.

They will get the chance to work with some of the most prestigious heritage venues in the North West, including the Whitworth Art Gallery, Manchester City Galleries, People's History Museum, Manchester Jewish Museum, Dunham Massey and Ordsall Hall. Manchester Museum and IWM North hope the project will demonstrate benefits to volunteers, museums and society.

Oakwood Theme Park staff celebrate at the end of their training day

IWM lands funds to train volunteers

More than 100 employees at Oakwood Theme Park in Pembrokeshire have been trained with the same programme used on thousands of volunteers for last year's London Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The WorldHost Ambassador training programme, originally developed in Canada to train volunteers for the Vancouver Winter Olympics, was delivered by tourism, travel and hospitality skills educator People 1st.

The customer service training will ensure employees' skills keep pace with the ongoing growth at the park, which will this year unveil £4m of investment. Park director Dominic Jones said: “Last year’s Olympics really showed how good Britian is at delivering world class service and at Oakwood we wanted to use that skill, expertise and enthusiasm to inspire our own staff.”

Royal Life Saving Society starts ‘baby lifesaving course’

The Royal Life Saving Society (RLSS) has introduced a new course which aims to teach vital emergency lifesaving skills to parents and those who regularly work with babies.

The Save a Baby’s Life workshops will include practical information on what to do when a baby stops breathing, and dealing with a choking or drowning situation. Di Standley, CEO at the RLSS UK, said: “We hope that the Save a Baby’s Life campaign will raise awareness for the need of basic first aid training for parents across the UK, and encourage more parents to get their babies and children into their local leisure centres from a young age.”

LEISURE FACILITIES MANAGER
(HAVEN POINT)

£50,612 pa

South Tyneside Council is committed to delivering a unique, affordable and accessible leisure offer to all residents and visitors to the Borough.

As part of this commitment we are seeking a dynamic and highly motivated individual to manage our leisure portfolio.

Based at our new £16.9 million flagship leisure complex ‘Haven Point’ in South Shields, you will be directly responsible for the operational success of five distinct facilities, developing a varied and exciting programme of wet and dry activities.

Your marketing skills and business acumen will be used creatively to increase our customer base, developing local offers and a sales strategy that will increase general participation and membership levels.

Your leadership skills will be used to shape a great team, developing staff to achieve service excellence and delivering a balanced leisure offer which creates a first class and varied customer experience.

If you want to make your mark in a Culture and Leisure service with a reputation for innovation and modern thinking, please contact David Brooks for an informal discussion on (0191) 424 7570 or e-mail david.brooks@southtyneside.gov.uk

South Tyneside is a fabulous place to live, invest and bring up families.

Lying at the heart of the North East of England and at the entrance to the River Tyne, the Borough’s administrative centre, South Shields, remains a destination of choice for visitors and residents to experience the outstanding coastline and seaside offer.

As part of its ambitious regeneration programme, the Council has invested significantly in a number of attractions which aim to improve the range of experiences available across the Borough. The leisure offer is an integral component of this and supports the Council’s vision of making South Shields the North East of England’s premier coastal resort.

To find out more about this role please visit www.southtyneside.info/jobs. Alternatively you can e-mail jobs@southtyneside.gov.uk or call (0191) 455 4968. BT Typetalkers welcome.

The Gym Group is the 13th fastest growing company in the Sunday Times Fast Track 100 and a top 15 Sunday Times Best Companies to Work For - with revenues increasing from £1.0 million in 2008/9 to £13.5 million last year: a result of opening 32 Gyms in the same period, delivering high quality facilities and a model that is fit for purpose for today’s economic climate.

The Gym’s unique 24/7, contract free offer is the most compelling gym proposition in the UK. Featuring a fully web enabled membership system and high quality, extensive range of gym equipment the strength of this proposition has helped to drive this extraordinary growth story.

The company currently has over 650,000 sq ft of Gym space across 32 locations, serving 600,000+ members and 7.5 million users a year. There are plans to open between 15 - 20 sites during 2013, with £40m of funding secured to aid the continued growth of this ambitious and exciting company.

But that is just the start. The Gym Group has ambitious plans and is seeking to appoint a Property Director to accelerate growth.

THE ROLE
- Board member reporting directly to the Chief Executive with management responsibility for the entire property function.
- To help drive the business for significant growth in the UK.
- To acquire 15 -20 suitable sites per year across the UK.
- To oversee the property acquisition, development and property management functions and a number of outsourced professional teams.
- To further strengthen the company’s current position as a market leader.
- To enhance the offering of a very strong leisure brand.

THE CANDIDATE
- An experienced board member with a ‘hands on’ approach to Acquisitions.
- A senior, qualified property professional with extensive experience in the acquisition of sites for an ambitious roll-out programme.
- A successful track record in acquiring multiple new sites and of managing a property development function.
- Experience in a leisure-related sector would be preferred.
- Must have extensive experience of overseeing and managing teams of mainly outsourced property professionals.

Director of Derbyshire Sport

DCC/13/5577

Grade 16 £54,894 - £59,895 per annum

Derbyshire Sport, Ripley

Derbyshire Sport is one of 49 county sports partnerships in England and is seeking applications from high calibre candidates, for the position of Director. There are strong plans in place in Derbyshire, for the development of sport, active recreation and physical activity. There are also excellent working relationships between the many partners that make up Derbyshire Sport including; the local authorities, national governing bodies, school sport partnerships, university and colleges, professional sports clubs, public health and the voluntary and private sectors. This has resulted in some excellent progress towards the shared vision of Derbyshire becoming one of the most active and successful sporting counties in England by 2020. The Director will play a lead role in developing and maintaining stakeholder relationships, driving the delivery of the strategic plans and managing the staff and resources within the partnership. The successful candidate will have extensive experience in several aspects of sports development and be able to evidence their commitment, drive and initiative. Strong influencing skills, excellent communications skills and extensive experience of strategic planning and project leadership are all essential requirements for this role.

Duke opens £3.6m Tiger Territory

The Duke of Edinburgh has officially opened the Indonesian-inspired Tiger Territory at London Zoo, which will be home to endangered Sumatran tigers Jae Jae and Melati.

The £3.6m project has seen the tigers’ home expand five fold to 27,000sq ft (2,500sq m) and has been designed by the conservationists and the zoo’s tiger keepers. It includes towering trees and a custom-built swimming pool and is the zoo’s biggest investment since the opening of Gorilla Kingdom in 2007.

The Duke officially opened the exhibit on 20 March, unveiling a plaque to commemorate the occasion, before it officially opened to the public two days later.

3D film celebrates Preston museum

Preston Park Museum and Grounds in Stockton-on-Tees has hosted an animated 3D film projected on to its façade to celebrate its official re-launch following a £7m revamp. Hundreds turned up to view the night time animation, entitled Lustre, which centred around the hall and its hidden secrets. The restored museum now has a complete redisplay of its collections, an interactive Victorian street and a traditional walled kitchen garden and orchard.

The Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) and Stockton Borough Council funded the two-year transformation.

HLF trustee and committee member Richard Morris said: “The stunning projection reflected the journey the museum has made and explores the borough’s rich heritage. It was an appropriate and creative way to remember the history of the hall, its people, and above all Stockton’s great story as the popular attraction it will certainly be.” He said it was fantastic to see so many members of the local community turn up to support the reopening.
