£97m Titanic Belfast launches

Titanic Belfast, a major new £97m attraction in Northern Ireland, has opened 100 yards from where the ill-fated liner was launched a century ago.

Civic Arts-Eric R Kuhne and Associates were behind the concept design of the building, with Todd Architects acting as executive architects. Harcourt Construction built the new themed attraction.

The 14,000sqm (150,695sq ft) building houses nine interpretative galleries that take visitors back to post-Edwardian Belfast to explore the history of Titanic. Event Communications worked on the content, with the nine areas including The Launch; The Sinking; and The Aftermath.

Other facilities in the building include community arts and education space, a large gallery for temporary exhibitions and cafés.

Titanic Belfast is one of the five Northern Ireland Tourist Board tourism signature projects that aim to boost the province’s offering.

Deal secured for Swindon scheme

Swindon Borough Council (SBC) and Moirai Capital Investments have moved forward with proposals for the Wiltshire town’s new £65m regional leisure hub.

Leases have been agreed for the project, which will see Oasis Leisure Centre transferred to a private operator on 1 June before it undergoes an extensive refurbishment.

An indoor ski slope, an indoor arena and a waterpark will also form part of the planned new hub, with leisure specialists S&P Architects working on the design of the development.

A collaborative agreement between SBC and Moirai Capital Investments comprises long-term leases to four sites, which include Oasis Leisure Centre and the former Clares site.

The agreement requires a planning masterplan for the former Clares site to be lodged within two years. Detailed proposals will then be submitted for each individual stage.

The local authority’s cabinet member for leisure and corporate services, Keith Williams, said: “The signing of the leases is a major step forward in our plans to turn Swindon into a major leisure destination.”

Green light for Derby arena development

Derby City Council (DCC) has approved planning permission for the development of a new multi-million pound sports and entertainment arena near the city’s existing Pride Park Stadium.

The 14,500sq m (156,077sq ft) venue has been designed by FaulknerBrowns Architects and will house a 250m cycling track and a 1.5km (0.9-mile) outdoor closed cycle trail.

It is hoped work will now be able to commence in June, with a sports infield accommodating 12 badminton courts and hospitality facilities also included in the plans.

DCC project manager Mace submitted the proposals earlier this year and the new arena is to be built on the site of an existing park and ride facility. It is due to open in early 2014.

“The arena forms the first phase of the council’s Leisure Strategy that is planned to provide significant new facilities to the city,” said the local authority’s strategic director of neighbourhoods, Paul Robinson.

Report: Glasgow 2014 preparations ‘on track’

Audit Scotland has said that preparations for the 2014 Commonwealth Games in Glasgow are continuing to progress, although said “risks remain” over certain projects.

Fieldwork for the research was carried out during November last year and found that infrastructure projects would be completed on time for the Games.

However, “key risks” remain over elements such as the Athletes’ Village and developing Hampden Park as a track and field venue.

Jacques Rogge, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), has praised London 2012 for creating a “legacy blueprint” for the hosting of future Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Rogge made the comments ahead of a meeting with Prime Minister David Cameron at Downing Street, where he was told about ongoing work to prepare for the event, as well as government legacy plans.

It coincided with a three-day visit by the IOC and the publication of Beyond 2012 – outlining the depth of the 2012 legacy.

In addition to the sporting legacy benefits, including the Sainsbury’s School Games, it is also anticipated London 2012 will deliver a £3m boost through domestic and global tourism.

The government also hopes the Games will support a culture of volunteering through the

Sport England has welcomed safeguards for playing fields in the NPPF

The government has included safeguards to protect sports playing fields from development in its National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) published on 27 March.

Planning minister Greg Clark announced the launch of the new 50-page document, which is designed to simplify the planning process and support economic growth.

The new NPPF will only allow the development of existing open space, sports and recreational buildings and land if it involves the creation of equivalent or improved facilities elsewhere.

Alternatively, playing fields can only be developed on if it leads to sports provision where the benefits outweigh the losses or if the land is found to be surplus to requirements.

Sport England will continue to be formally consulted on any relevant planning applications in England and has welcomed the safeguards included in the NPPF as a sign of the government’s commitment to sport.

New campaign offers a GREAT platform

With the summer approaching, hoteliers and other hospitality operators are turning their thoughts to the coming season, dominated as it is by the Olympic Games in late July and August.

How will such a major event affect the hospitality industry in London – and elsewhere in the UK? Will it displace many visitors who might otherwise have wanted to come to Britain this year? How many new visitors will it attract? And how will the general economic situation affect domestic demand this year? These are some of the questions to which we don’t yet know the answer – though we do know from a BHA survey that hotels in London expect to be 100 per cent full during the Games.

But the industry is taking no chances – which is why we welcome the Holidays at Home are GREAT campaign and urge the sector to support it. The aim is simple: to boost domestic business this year. Celebrity-led TV adverts are currently urging viewers to visit www.great2012offers.com for details of deals including hotel stays, tickets to attractions and other offers designed to encourage more home holidays this year.

Of course, what is forgotten is that many operators offer deals all-year-round to boost booking at specific times or in specific locations, but this new site gives them the chance to use their own innovation and creativity this year – with the added incentive of VisitEngland’s promotional resource.

This wouldn’t have been possible without the government’s support for tourism, including an additional £4m to VisitEngland. What the campaign needs now is support from all parts of the industry. The campaign gives operators a new platform to promote any special offer and it makes sense for many of them to take advantage of the resource.

What offers operators provide – and when they provide them – is a commercial decision for them but what is particularly to be welcomed is that the campaign is all-inclusive. Offers in the restaurant and attractions sectors, for example, widen the scope of the campaign and this makes it more relevant to even more people during this busy year.

What the campaign needs now is support – including an additional £4m to VisitEngland.

‘Refund’ booking site launches

Smarter Travel Media, a subsidiary of TripAdvisor, has launched a new hotel booking website that automatically rebooks rooms if they become available at a lower rate.

Tingo is designed to enable travellers to book a “Money Back” room from an list of properties powered by the Expedia Affiliate Network.

After a booking has been made, the website will monitor prices and automatically rebook the room if the rate drops. The difference in price will then be refunded to the traveller’s payment card.

Around 95 per cent of hotels on Tingo could earn travellers a “Money Back” refund, while the rates will be competitive even if the price isn’t reduced after completing the booking.

David Krauter, general manager of Smarter Travel Media, commented: “Travellers could have saved millions last year had there been a simple system in place that automatically rebooked their room.

“And that’s what Tingo does, by taking the gamble out of booking and refunding travellers’ money when rates drop. It’s a no-brainer.”

PKF: Regional hotels ‘outperform’ London

Regional hotel operators “outperformed” their London counterparts in February – the first time since August 2009 – according to the latest preliminary data from PKF Hotel Consultancy Services.

In the capital, rooms yield increased by a marginal 0.3 per cent and room rate was up 2.8 per cent compared with February 2011. However, occupancy dropped 2.5 per cent.

The regional market saw occupancy increase by 1 per cent to 64.4 per cent and was reinforced by a 0.7 per cent growth in room rate.

Robert Barnard, partner for Hotel Consultancy Services at PKF, said: “These are a respectable set of results given the general malaise throughout the UK economy.

“The performance of regional hotels was a ‘welcome boost’ after winter malaise throughout the UK economy.

IWM London submits £35m plans

Imperial War Museums (IWM) has submitted a listed building and planning application to Southwark Council for the transformation of its flagship branch in London.

The proposals focus on the first phase of a longer term masterplan for IWM London, which has been drawn up in partnership with renowned architects Foster + Partners.

Lend Lease Construction has been confirmed as the construction management contractor for the scheme, which also involves London-based exhibition designer Casson Mann.

The plans will see larger First World Galleries created in order to enable IWM London to display more of its collection, while its central hall is to be completely overhauled.

New central hall terrace displays for improved interpretation of the museum’s larger objects also forms part of the project, along with additional top-floor gallery space.

Work is to be completed in 2014 in order to commemorate the Centenary of the outbreak of the First World War. IWM London will shut for six months from January 2013.

Louvre is world’s ‘most visited’ art museum

New research has found that the Louvre, one of the most iconic attractions in Paris, France, was the world’s most visited art museum last year after it welcomed nearly 8.9 million people.

According to a study undertaken by The Art Newspaper, the Louvre easily claimed the top spot with nearly 3 million more visitors than the second most visited art attraction.

New York’s Metropolitan Museum of Art, US, saw 6 million people come through its doors, while the British Museum, National Gallery and Tate Modern – all in London – completed the top five.

The list of the top 10 most visited art attractions also included the National Gallery of Art, Washington, US; the National Palace Museum in Taipei, Taiwan; and Centre Pompidou, Paris.

It is The Art Newspaper’s latest annual poll of exhibition and museum attendances, which it has been carrying out since 1996.

Supported by
The new £18m Metropolitan Arts Centre (MAC) in Belfast is to open later this month (April) in the Northern Irish capital’s Cathedral Quarter. Hacker Hall McKnight are behind the design of the complex, which will house two black box theatre spaces with seating capacity for 120 and 350 spectators respectively.

Three galleries; a rehearsal space; a dance studio; and education rooms also form part of the venue, along with offices for resident groups and an artist-in-residence studio.

Construction work started on the scheme in late 2009, with the Department for Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) contributing nearly £11m towards the total development cost.

Arts minister Carál Ní Chuilín said: “My department has invested almost £11m into this £18m project, which will bring benefits in terms of physical, social and economic regeneration to the Cathedral Quarter.”

Funding has also been provided by Arts Council Northern Ireland; Belfast City Council; the Garfield Weston Foundation; and the Monument Trust among others.

Belfast’s £18m MAC to launch

The new £18m Metropolitan Arts Centre (MAC) in Belfast is to open later this month (April) in the Northern Irish capital’s Cathedral Quarter. Hacker Hall McKnight are behind the design of the complex, which will house two black box theatre spaces with seating capacity for 120 and 350 spectators respectively.

Three galleries; a rehearsal space; a dance studio; and education rooms also form part of the venue, along with offices for resident groups and an artist-in-residence studio.

Construction work started on the scheme in late 2009, with the Department for Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) contributing nearly £11m towards the total development cost.

Arts minister Carál Ní Chuilín said: “My department has invested almost £11m into this £18m project, which will bring benefits in terms of physical, social and economic regeneration to the Cathedral Quarter.”

Funding has also been provided by Arts Council Northern Ireland; Belfast City Council; the Garfield Weston Foundation; and the Monument Trust among others.

Ninety-eight core arts groups in NI to net £13.3m from ACNI

Nearly 100 core arts groups across Northern Ireland are to net a share of £13.3m after the Arts Council of Northern Ireland (ACNI) announced its annual funding allocation.

This year will be the first time that organisations have been able to apply in advance for up to three years’ worth of funding. According to ACNI, its decision to move from a one-year to a three-year funding model has been made in response to the current economic climate and is designed to ensure greater stability.

£40m Bangor venue contractor named

Edinburgh-based firm Miller Construction has been named as the preferred bidder for the contract to build a new £40m arts and innovation complex at Bangor University, Wales.

Work on Pontio is expected to get underway in May/June, with Grimshaw Architects behind the building’s design. Arup and Atkins are also involved with the project.

The 10,000sq m (107,639sq ft) complex will boast a theatre with a seating capacity of 450-550 people; a studio theatre; cinema space; an outdoor amphitheatre; and bar areas.

Pontio has received £27.5m from the Welsh Government and the European Regional Development Fund, as well as a contribution from the Arts Council of Wales.

DCMS seeks new Arts Council England chair

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) is to search for a new Arts Council England chair, following a decision not to reappoint Dame Liz Forgan.

Dame Liz became the first woman to chair the organisation after taking up the position on 1 February 2009 for a four-year term, which is to end on 31 January 2013.

The DCMS said culture secretary Jeremy Hunt had decided not to reappoint Dame Liz, but praised the contribution made to the UK’s arts industry during her tenure.

WTTC report criticises air duty

The World Travel and Tourism Council (WTTC) has published a report that has found the £2.8bn Air Passenger Duty is doing “more harm than good” to the UK economy.

In its study, the council said that 91,000 jobs could be created and an additional £4.2bn would be generated in 12 months if the air tax was removed by the government.

A planned APD increase coming into effect this month (April) will see a family of four paying £52 more for a flight to Malaga, Spain, or an extra £260 if travelling to Florida, US.

The study – carried out by Oxford Economics on behalf of WTTC – also found that APD was having a negative effect on trade with countries in the Caribbean, Africa and Asia.

WTTC president and CEO David Scowsill said: “It is economically illogical to continue with a tax that costs the country some 91,000 jobs and as much as £4.2bn.

“Travel and tourism grew by 4.1 per cent in the UK last year, but is forecast to slow to 1.3 per cent in 2012. This is partly due to the impact of APD, which is dampening demand.”

New research reveals value of UK day trips

New research conducted by VisitEngland in conjunction with Visit Wales and VisitScotland has uncovered the economic value of day trips to the UK’s domestic tourism industry.

The Great Britain Day Visits Survey found that 1.5 billion day trips were made by domestic residents, which were worth nearly £54bn in expenditure over the 12-month period.

VisitEngland said day visits by UK residents were worth £44.4bn out of a total £70bn spent by the total number of visitors to England.

European tourism ‘will continue to recover’

The European tourism industry “will continue to recover” from the 2009 downturn despite the continent’s fresh economic slump, according to Moody’s Analytics.

Trends in European Tourism by Enam Ahmed and Melanie Bowler admitted that the recovery may be slowed, but predicted no adverse impact on overall overnight stays.

Among the findings was that the regional economies of Central and Eastern Europe saw strong gains during the last recession, with tourism playing a key role.

Meanwhile, it is expected growth in tourism within small metropolitan areas, in addition to the attractiveness of medium-sized areas, strengthen the prospects for tourism firms.

The number of arrivals to Central and Eastern European destinations accelerated the most in 2011, including Russia and Poland.

Fletcher’s Cottage spa unveiled

A new 750sq m (8,000sq ft) luxury day spa has opened at the Archerfield Links golf course near Edinburgh.

The spa comprises seven treatment rooms – including a double treatment room and a salt brick inhalation room – as well as a large relaxation lounge with a wood burning oven and a walled garden, which has two seaweed bathing houses acting as additional treatment areas.

Other facilities at the spa, which have been designed and supplied by Nola 7, include a marine salt steam room, herbal aroma sauna, a mud cure room, an ice fountain and contrast adventure showers. Treatments have been supplied by Voya, Aromatherapy Associates, Spiezia, and Margaret Dabbs.

According to Kirsty Brown, marketing manager at Archerfield, the spa will be marketed for both members of the golf club as well as guests staying in the accommodation.

Brown said: “We already offer two great golf courses with accommodation at Archerfield and now we have something more for people who don't golf but their partners do.”

SpaFinder chair/CEO launches WellTech

Pete Ellis, chair and CEO of SpaFinder, has launched WellTech, a new health and wellness-focused ‘incubator’ designed to support, develop and bring new technology companies to market.

Selected businesses using technology to devise new consumer wellness solutions will receive a minimum investment of US$50,000 (£38,000, £31,000), plus mentoring.

WellTech will primarily focus on accelerating companies that have existing revenues and consumer traffic, but said it will also consider concepts that are “in an embryonic stage”.

The company is already working with FITiST, which reinvented the traditional gym membership by providing members with one-stop access to the best of boutique studios and health clubs, and Wizpert – which offers real-time conversations with ‘wizpers’ covering a range of wellness topics.

Welcome to the renaissance of the Leisure Property Forum (LPF) column in Leisure Opportunities. In past columns, we – as a group of writers – have contributed a variety of pieces stemming from our different backgrounds. Our writers include owners, operators, agents, lawyers, architects and we all write about current issues affecting the leisure industry and, in particular, its property issues.

The LPF was founded 15 years ago with the remit to bring together all of the parties involved in the business of leisure property, as well as providing a forum for an exchange of ideas and networking between operators and landlords; developers and financiers; academics; agents; and consultants. We also wanted to become a broad church of leisure sectors so that casino operators were sharing their experiences with multiplex operators, restaurateurs and the health and fitness industry, while experts from the horseracing fraternity could discuss shared planning difficulties with hoteliers and other hospitality industry organisations. Over the years, we have created some lively debates and presented exciting events. Now we have a membership of more than 400, comprising both corporate and individual members.

As a group, we currently meet on an ad-hoc basis attending eight evening seminars, an annual dinner, an autumn cocktail party, a Christmas party and our AGM. We always welcome new members and if you are interested in joining the LPF, then please visit our website for more information. We look forward over the coming months to hearing from you and hopefully entertaining you with some current and relevant articles relating to leisure property. If you have any specific queries about the LPF, please do not hesitate to contact me at john.burrows@burrowslittle.com.

I am sure you will find views expressed by our writers in forthcoming editions thought-provoking and hope the articles generate further healthy debate. We look forward to welcoming you to our group.

Elephant and Castle leisure plans revealed

Southwark Council and Lend Lease have unveiled plans for the redevelopment of London’s Elephant and Castle Leisure Centre site in the latest round of public consultation.

John McAslan and Partners is working with leisure specialists S&P Architects on a new leisure centre that is to form part of the scheme.

For the first time in more than a decade, the site is set to house a swimming pool in the leisure element. A fitness suite, a spin studio and a sports hall are also proposed.

The scheme will also comprise a residential tower overlooking the site that has designed by Squire and Partners.

Southwark Council cabinet member for regeneration Fiona Colley said: “For anyone thinking of moving to Elephant and Castle, or those who already live in this buzzing part of central London, this will be welcome news.”

Green light for Barry Island scheme

Outline plans for a mixed-use redevelopment of Barry Island Pleasure Park, South Wales, have been approved by Vale of Glamorgan Council’s planning committee.

The project will lead to the transformation of the 1.9-hectare (4.7-acre) funfair site at the entrance to Barry Island and includes 4,738sq m (51,000sq ft) of leisure uses.

A new cinema - the town’s first since the Theatre Royal closed - and other indoor leisure facilities are to be housed in part of a curved building on the site’s western perimeter.

The indoor leisure component of the development is designed to complement the existing and planned daytime offer by encouraging visitors to spend more time in Barry Island.

A report put before the council said: “It is considered that there is no reason why the cinema could not be a vibrant and functioning part of the daytime attractions. “The proposed development would widen the seasonal spread of tourism activities at Barry Island and assist the maximisation of tourist opportunities.”

Gloucestershire CCC confirms revised ground plans

Fresh plans for Bristol’s County Ground have been announced by Gloucestershire County Cricket Club (GCCC), two months after its previous vision for the venue was rejected.

The club said the Stride Treglown Tektus-designed project will secure its future in the city, while also providing facilities designed to support regional growth plans for the sport.

If approved by Bristol City Council, the County Ground will boast a seating capacity of 17,000 – 7,500 of which will be permanent.

Springboard trains 1,000th ambassador

GARETH EDWARDS is education director of The Springboard Charity and Springboard UK

Springboard is lucky to have an army of motivated ambassadors from the hospitality, leisure and tourism sectors who are trained and primed with the message about the exciting career opportunities available.

This year, the Springboard Ambassador Programme – a two-day specialist course designed to develop presentation skills, confidence and sector knowledge – reached its latest milestone as Assia Riccio-Smith – host manager at Raymond Blanc’s Le Manoir aux Quat’Saisons – became Springboard’s 1,000th ambassador.

Ambassadors gain keys skills in the ability to present well to a variety of audiences, strong advice and guidance skills and an increased understanding of the industry. It also equips them to be internal ambassadors, encouraging the retention of staff.

The reason ambassadors are needed is because Springboard can never fulfil all the requests it gets to visit schools and colleges across the UK. It provides a great resource to meet this demand and provides valuable CPD for our business partners. Employer benefits are that the programme drives home-grown talent to their doors making it a cost-effective recruitment tool.

Ambassadors act as talent scouts, seeking out those who demonstrate that they have the passion and enthusiasm for a career in hospitality. It raises the brand awareness and promotes them as an employer of choice. Last year Springboard ambassadors reached 10,207 potential recruits across the country offering home grown talent careers advice and guidance, CV building, interview skills and also offering quality work experience through INSPIRE.

In 2012, Springboard ambassadors are supporting the Inspiring their Futures Campaign, a campaign that looks for inspirational speakers to visit schools to talk about industry careers and encourage and promote young people to join this industry. For further information on ambassadors or to become an ambassador, contact Kerry Mabbley: kerrym@springboarduk.org.uk

TRAINING

New Solihull facility for Premier Training

Premier Training International (PTI) is to open its latest training venue at David Lloyd Leisure’s Solihull club in the West Midlands as part of a UK-wide expansion.

The new facility, which will open in May, will complement the provider’s existing West Midlands site at Dudley and is among a number of new locations due to open this year.

In January, PTI revealed plans to open five new venues by the summer to accommodate the growing number of people who are turning to careers in health and fitness.

PTI chief executive officer Debra Stuart said: “Obviously this is a period of real expansion and progress for Premier, and our Solihull venue is the latest development in our plans.

Solihull will be the latest facility in Premier Training’s UK expansion “The demand for health and fitness course provision continues to increase by the day, and we are committed to meeting that.”

SkillsActive confirms new investment

SkillsActive has secured funding to continue the delivery of skills solutions for the active leisure sector from 1 April.

The sector skills council has been appointed by the UK Commission for Employment and Skills in partnership with Lantra; Habia; People 1st; Improve; and GoSkills.

SkillsActive secured funding for three of four national occupational standards projects, such as the review of standards for leisure operations and management to reflect current practice. It will review standards underpinning the Advanced Apprenticeship in Sporting Excellence framework, as well as working to fill gaps in standards for new professional Playwork areas.

SkillsActive acting chief executive officer Suki Kalirai said: “National occupational standards, qualifications and Apprenticeships are key products for developing a better skilled, better qualified workforce.”

Elsewhere, SkillsActive has secured investment for Apprenticeships with a special focus on coaching in Wales and achieving excellence in sports performance in Scotland.

Director of Leisure Facilities

Location: Bournemouth     Salary: c£60K

BH Live is a leisure and cultural trust established in 2010 to promote participation in leisure, culture and events across 6 sites in Bournemouth including the national recognised Bournemouth International Centre (BIC), the Grade II listed Pavilion Theatre and the award winning Littledown Centre. Our aim is now to build on our success and firmly establish BH Live as a leading organisation in the sector and secure a national reputation for excellence.

When you join BH Live as the Director of Leisure Facilities, with responsibility for our four leisure centre sites and outdoor areas, you will be accountable for all aspects of strategy, marketing, operations and business development within the leisure portfolio. You will be a forward thinking and innovative leisure professional, with commercial acumen and a real passion for promoting the broader community benefits of leisure provision. This exciting role will provide inspirational leadership to a large team as well as being part of the Executive Management Team for BH Live.

If you have the experience of working at a strategic level within the Leisure industry, have a proven track record of developing and winning new business along with the ability to lead, inspire and motivate a large team, please apply by sending your CV with a covering letter outlining how you meet the essential criteria for the role demonstrating your experience and achievements to recruitment@bhlive.co.uk.

For an informal discussion please call Peter Gunn, Chief Executive on 01202 456430

Les Mills International (LMI) creates the world’s most popular group exercise programmes that are enjoyed by millions of people every week. Our programmes are taught around the world by 90,000 certified instructors in 14,000 licensed clubs. In the UK our classes have been running in all the main health clubs and fitness chains since 1997 through LMI’s appointed distributor.

The company has now acquired the UK distribution agency. As a result of this acquisition, Les Mills Fitness UK is already a substantial business delivering some 5,700 Les Mills programmes every year in 1,700 clubs with 30 employees and a team of 32 contracted trainers.

But that is just the start. Les Mills Fitness UK has ambitious plans and is seeking to appoint its first CEO to develop and deliver its substantial growth strategy for the UK market.

The Role

- To develop the business to deliver significant growth in the UK through existing channels and clients and to identify and develop new channels and revenue streams
- To establish Les Mills Fitness UK as an industry champion of the UK H&F sector
- To promote and advance the Les Mills brand in the UK
- To ensure Les Mills Fitness UK is an integral part of the global LMI success story
- To lead the transition from distributor model to proprietary model

The Candidate

- An experienced, results-focused leader with relevant industry experience
- A senior executive with excellent sales and marketing skills and a track record of commercial success
- Significant experience and understanding of how to penetrate the UK leisure and/or fitness markets at both strategic and tactical levels
- A strong organisational leader, people manager and industry thought-leader
- Proven change management skills and cultural sensitivity

This is a significant appointment and so we are looking for someone who is energetic and passionate about the Les Mills brand to lead the growth of our business in the UK.
OFT issues Groupon UK ruling

Daily discount voucher company Groupon has been found to be breaking UK consumer rules and has been given three months to change and improve its practices.

The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) found “widespread examples” where Groupon was seen to breach consumer protection regulations.

Announcing the findings of its investigation on 16 March, the OFT said that it has specific concerns over practices involving reference pricing, advertising, refunds, unfair terms, and the diligence of its interactions with merchants.

A July deadline has now been imposed by the OFT for Groupon to undertake changes in its practices to comply with UK law.

The OFT made a series of recommendations to Groupon in its findings. OFT has not yet ruled out the possibility of legal action against Groupon if the company fails to follow its instructions. Read more: http://lei.sr?a=aigsD

John Penrose outlines racing’s Tote sale benefits

A charity and a grant scheme are to be established in order to distribute the £90m allocated to the racing industry following last year’s sale of the Horserace Totalisator Board (Tote). John Penrose, minister with responsibility for horseracing, has announced plans which he said are “making good” on a pledge made with regards to proceeds from the £265m deal.

The charity – The Racing Foundation – will regard to proceeds from the £265m deal.

New leisure vision for Rheola Estate

Neath Port Talbot (NPT) Council is to consider a masterplan for the future of the Rheola Estate in the Neath Valley, South Wales, which has been produced alongside the site’s owner.

A leisure complex housing a swimming pool; a spa; a gym; a restaurant; and a bar is among the plans for the estate, along with holiday log cabins and a residential development.

The council said the residential development is required in order to provide funding towards the leisure and tourism element at the 95-acre (38.4-hectare) Rheola Estate.

According to NPT, the estate is situated close to the Waterfall Country and is in an area that already attracts visitors. The plans also comply with the NPT tourism and leisure strategy.

Outline plans have been submitted by The Urbanists, on behalf of R M Rees (Contractors) and is currently awaiting consideration.

Go Ape is looking to grow into Australia and the US

NPT head of regeneration Gareth Nutt said: “There has been interest shown by industrialists to develop the site but the council sees the regeneration of the estate and this part of the valley focusing on tourism and leisure.” Details: http://lei.sr?a=L8Q4u
