Awards celebrate workforce success

The physical activity sector has come together to celebrate the best performers in workforce development and training, as the winners were announced for this year’s Active Training Awards.

Life Leisure came away with the most awards, taking home Medium-Sized Employer of the Year, together with an individual gong for Danny Drayson from Life Leisure Grand Central, who scooped Outstanding Individual of the Year.

Among the other winners, Virgin Active landed the Large Employer of the Year award, while Training Provider of the Year went to Future Fit Training.

“If the physical activity sector is the golden thread running through society, its workforce is its beating heart and soul,” said ukactive CEO Steven Ward in his welcome address.

“We have to celebrate those employers and training providers who are dedicated to developing it. “The onus is now on us to use this as a springboard for rapid progress on the skills agenda in the next 12 months.”

More than 250 sector leaders gathered at the Reading Hilton for the awards, sponsored by Active IQ. The day began with the Active Training Conference, held in partnership with CIMSPA, and sponsored by Active IQ and Lifetime Training.

Paralympic gold medallist and BBC commentator Marc Woods named as new chair of CIMSPA

Former Paralympian Marc Woods has been named as chair of the Chartered Institute for the Management of Sport and Physical Activity (CIMSPA).

Woods, who is also an author and conference speaker, succeeds Andy Reed OBE, who is standing down after serving for one year as interim chair.

His appointment, on a three-year term, comes after news in September that CIMSPA secured £1.2m in funding from Sport England to drive its workforce improvement project.

“I’m delighted to be appointed as CIMSPA chair at an exciting time for the chartered institute, following the recent investment by Sport England,” said Woods. “I’d like to thank Andy Reed for all his hard work and look forward to building on the success achieved under the leadership of both CEO Tara Dillon and Andy.”

Woods, who won 12 medals swimming for Great Britain, already has experience at board-level with the Teenage Cancer Trust, Youth Sport Direct and the Youth Sport Trust.

CIMSPA CEO Tara Dillon added: “Marc brings a wealth of experience and skills to the institute and will help connect CIMSPA to policymakers at the highest level.”

Marcel Wanders blasts minimalism and says designers ‘should add value to people’s lives’

Dutch designer Marcel Wanders has blasted minimalist hospitality design trends.

Wanders – best known for his colourful and often surreal hotel collaborations with the likes of Morgans Hotel Group and Park Hyatt – argued that architects and designers working in the hotel sector “should add fun and value to people’s lives”.

“If you love design enough to give your life to it – studying for years and flying to jobs and events around the world – then why would you try to design as little as possible?” he asked.

“I want to create things that show my love, my respect, my interest in the world, my understanding of human behaviour.

“In my studio, we have a saying: ‘We always want to give more than people expect.’”

Wanders’ vibrant philosophy can be seen in projects such as the Mondrian Doha, inspired by the traditional tales of the One Thousand and One Nights, and the Andaz Amsterdam Prinsengracht, with oversized bells, passion red Tulip Chairs and walls showing ancient nautical maps all referencing the Dutch Golden Age.
Katherine Grainger says unfunded sports have role

Chair of UK Sport Katherine Grainger says unfunded sports still have a role in the system but will have to look elsewhere for investment as “there isn’t an open-ended chequebook”.

Grainger admitted her first three months in post had been “challenging”, with one of her first tasks to placate 11 national governing bodies who lost out in the past two funding cycles.

“It’s important to emphasise that even if a sport is unfunded, it still has a role in our system,” she said. “I have huge empathy for the sports that are struggling without financial support and are still being asked to deliver on performance. Unfortunately, there isn’t an open-ended chequebook we can draw from.”

The former Olympic rower granted an audience with the bodies for archery, badminton, baseball/softball, basketball, fencing, handball, table tennis, volleyball, weightlifting, wrestling and wheelchair rugby.

They demanded a review of UK Sport’s decision to strip archery, fencing, badminton, weightlifting and wheelchair rugby of funding following Rio 2016.

“We heard from each sport individually, and also had everyone come together to try and identify a way forward – including areas where efficiencies could be made and ways to find funding,” said Grainger.
John Amaechi calls for sport and physical activity sector to harness diversity

Former NBA star John Amaechi has called for the sport and physical activity sector to embrace diversity and encourage inclusivity.

Amaechi, who became the first former NBA basketballer to come out publicly when he wrote his memoir, said businesses need to create a more diverse workforce and will soon realise the benefits.

“There’s an old saying but a true saying that ‘culture eats strategy for breakfast,’” said Amaechi.

“If you want to win and you want the best ideas, you want the most passionate people”

“Having an inclusive culture makes a difference – it means that you have the best minds.”

Speaking at ukactive’s Active Training Conference, the CEO of Amaechi Performance Systems said: “People think we live in a meritocracy but when you look at most industries, it’s impossible to believe the best brains available exist only in elderly white men – they can’t have all the best brains.

“The idea that women, people of colour or people with disabilities don’t have the best ideas is outrageous.

“So if you want to win and you want the best ideas, you want the most passionate people and they come from lots of different sectors of society. That’s why inclusion wins.”

Stock market floatation back on agenda for énergie Group, reveals CEO Jan Spaticchia

Fitness brand énergie Group could float on the stock market or sell shares to a private equity company within two years, CEO Jan Spaticchia has revealed.

The group scrapped initial public offering plans in 2012 due to the volatility of the marketplace, but in an interview with Leisure Opportunities, Spaticchia said a floatation could be revisited.

“There will come a point in the next 12 to 24 months when you’ll see us look to crystallise the value of the business,” he said.

“There will come a point in the next 12 to 24 months when you’ll see us crystallise the value of the business”

“Having an inclusive culture makes a difference – it means that you have the best minds.”

The transaction valued the business at £15m.

Spaticchia revealed énergie’s plans to grow its international presence, with a contract about to be signed for its first site in Africa – in Nairobi, Kenya.

It will also expand its presence in Ireland by 15 to 20 sites over the next 12 months, from its existing 11 clubs.

éra also has two gyms opening in Latvia and one in Poland, with growth into the Polish market expected next year.

A rebrand of its UK clubs is ongoing, including the installation of its functional fitness concept The Yard.
Titanic Belfast – one of Northern Ireland’s most visited attractions – has confirmed Judith Owens as its new chief executive.

Previously operating as the attraction’s director of operations and deputy chief executive, the promotion puts Owens at the head of Titanic Belfast, which in 2016 picked up the award for World’s Leading Tourist Attraction at the World Travel Awards.

“Having been at the forefront of Titanic Belfast’s development, I’m very proud of everything it has achieved in its first five years,” said Owens. “I look forward to delivering in the next stage of the company’s development. Rest assured, we’ll continue to deliver our world-class standards to visitors and clients alike.”

Owens replaces Tim Husbands, who leaves to take up a new position as chief executive of County Mayo’s Westport House in the Republic of Ireland.

“Over the past 25 years, it’s been an honour to play a role in the transformation of Belfast into a destination of choice for both leisure and business tourists,” said Husbands. “It’s a fantastic city and I’m sure it will go from strength-to-strength.”

Operator reveals naming rights strategy

A £28m leisure centre has opened in Eastleigh bearing the name of operators Places for People.

The new centre, Places Leisure Eastleigh, has been developed by Eastleigh Borough Council with a contribution of £2m from Sport England, and will be operated by Places for People Leisure.

Speaking to Leisure Opportunities about the deal, in which Places for People will sponsor a number of physical activity schemes in return for naming rights, COO of Places for People Leisure John Oxley said: “We’re delighted about the new name and we’re proud to be its sponsor.”

Rich Millard, Places for People partnership director, said: “We’re in the process of refocusing our group branding. We’re very proud of our Places concept, and it was just a natural and logical progression [to naming rights].

“There was an opportunity to invest in the HealthWorks and other physical activity schemes, and we worked with the local authority to come up with this arrangement. It’s a good deal for us because it raises our exposure, however, we’re very respectful of the fact that it’s a community centre, which is why we’ve included ‘Eastleigh’ in the name.”

UK Leisure Framework paves way for improvement in Wales

Work has begun on the £7.4m extension of Monmouth Leisure Centre, which developers say was made possible by the UK Leisure Framework.

Alliance Leisure is delivering the scheme for Monmouthshire County Council, with the framework helping to reduce upfront costs.

The redevelopment includes a toning suite to increase provision for sedentary people and those with health conditions.

“We’ve been in discussions with Monmouthshire for some time, but it was the launch of the UK Leisure Framework earlier this year that allowed the council to proceed with the development in the most cost-effective way,” said Julia Goddard, senior business development manager at Alliance Leisure.

Midlands council looks for operator to lead £20m project

A Leicestershire council is searching for an operator to lead its £20m leisure centre project after admitting its current provision has “become disjointed, inefficient and inflexible”.

The 40-year-old Hermitage Leisure Centre in Coalville will be replaced after councillors decided to begin the search for an operator to design, build, operate and maintain a new leisure centre.

A leisure strategy for the region, The North West Leicestershire 2016-2020 Framework, highlighted a shortfall of approximately 111 fitness stations in the district.

The plans include an eight-court sports hall, eight-lane 25-metre pool, learner pool, 150-station fitness suite, multi-activity and spin studios, and three squash courts.

“The leisure centre will help more people lead healthy lifestyles,” said Cllr Alison Smith, deputy leader of North West Leicestershire District Council.

Fusion looks to buck trend by tripling apprenticeships

More apprentices will be offered a route into the fitness industry after Fusion Lifestyle decided to grow its apprenticeship programme from 150 to 500 over the next three years.

Figures from the Department for Education show the number of new apprentices in England fell by 59 per cent in the three months to the end of July, despite plans for three million more across UK industry by 2020.

Fusion Lifestyle aims to grow its annual apprenticeship programme in partnership with sports and leisure industry training provider ICON Training. The scheme, Fusion500, offers apprentices a career pathway using the Leisure Professional Apprenticeship from Level 2 through to Level 7.

“This programme combines practical teaching and knowledge elements in one course, creating a multi-skilled workforce,” said ICON director Gary Denton.

MultiFit’s global expansion starts in UK

Indian functional fitness brand MultiFit will open its first international studio in the UK this year, kickstarting its expansion into Europe and the UAE.

Dr Samir Kapoor and his partner Sally Jones-Kapoor launched the brand in 2015 and have built up a chain of 15 studios across four Indian cities: Pune, Mumbai, Delhi and Jaipur. A further 12 are under construction in Hyderabad, Salem and Mysore.

By the end of 2020, the couple aim to have 160 fitness studios across India, the UK and UAE.

Dr Kapoor said: “We plan to launch our first international studio in the UK before the end of the year. Sally is from the UK and understands the market well.”

In addition to strength training and functional training areas, MultiFit studios offer more than 14 classes a day, covering HIIT, yoga, looping (indoor cycling), callisthenics and intense functional interval training (iFIT).

Its Palaeolithic workouts often take place outdoors and mimic the actions of people living in the Stone Age, such as chopping wood with an axe. Countryside boot camps feature 48 hours of rigorous exercise in the form of cycling, swimming and trekking.

Bannatyne expands into NI with Virgin Active Belfast

The Bannatyne Group has cast its net across the Irish Sea after buying Virgin Active’s Belfast club.

The acquisition, for an undisclosed sum, is the first step in an investment strategy likely to include further deals in Northern Ireland and also the Republic of Ireland.

“Bannatyne Group is in an acquisition and growth phase and has significant resources to draw upon to fund the right deals,” said Justin Musgrove, the group’s chief executive. “This agreement could be the first of several acquisitions north and south of the Irish border.”

The operator will invest £1.2m in the club, which has a membership of more than 3,700 people.

It is the second time this year the operators have agreed a deal, following Bannatyne’s purchase of Virgin Active Humberston in Lincolnshire in August.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Call for sector to influence London Plan

Experts from the sport and physical activity sector have a major role to play in delivering the mayor’s London Plan, according to chief executive of London Sport Tove Okunniwa.

The draft plan, made available for consultation on 1 December by mayor of London Sadiq Khan, was welcomed by Okunniwa, who highlighted the importance of considering ‘active lives’ when making improvements to the capital’s infrastructure.

“The plan makes clear the complex interrelations that govern and dictate the way Londoners live their lives,” said Okunniwa. “Housing, clean air, transport, leisure, culture and the streets and paths we walk, cycle and run along are bound together in a web of complementary – and sometimes competing – networks.

“The challenge is two-fold. To developers, planners, commercial enterprises and representatives from all areas to make a seat at the table for experts in physical activity and sport, and to think creatively about their role in shaping the future of the city.

“And to the world of physical activity and sport, to make ourselves available – to be generous with our insight and knowledge, and to be flexible in shaping our own priorities to fit into the context of our city.”

VOLUNTEERS

Projects receive £4.4m to attract new volunteers

Sport England has announced plans to invest £4.4m to recruit a new generation of volunteers who will benefit communities across the country.

Thirty-two projects will receive National Lottery funding to help them encourage more women, disabled people, young people and those from disadvantaged backgrounds to volunteer for sport and physical activity initiatives.

The move is part of an overall investment in volunteering of £30m, under Sport England’s strategy ‘Towards an active nation’.

“Volunteers make such a difference to grassroots sport – without them it would simply not happen,” said minister for sport Tracey Crouch.

“This funding will encourage young people to get involved in sports volunteering.”

Abandoned ski village set for £22.5m redevelopment

A former ski village in Sheffield will be reinvented as a sports attraction after a £22.5m plan was announced to breathe new life into the site.

Working in partnership with Continuum Attractions, Sheffield City Council will resurrect the 48-acre (194,000sq m) site as a sports, leisure and entertainment venue under the Extreme brand.

The first phase of the plan will see the restoration of the disused ski slopes and mountain bike tracks. Plans include a world-class sports and leisure ‘experience' complex, an indoor skydiving facility, live music and a gaming and a virtual reality hub.

“This news will come as an early Christmas present to the thousands of winter sports enthusiasts who trained on the slopes at the ski village,” said councillor Mazher Iqbal, from Sheffield City Council.

I am delighted to welcome Marc Woods as the new chair of the Chartered Institute for the Management of Sport and Physical Activity (CIMSPA).

Marc is a multiple Paralympic gold medallist, BBC commentator, author and conference speaker. He has worked on the boards of numerous organisations including the Teenage Cancer Trust, Youth Sport Direct and the Youth Sport Trust. As a learning development specialist, he has worked around the world for organisations ranging from IBM to Danone, Proctor & Gamble to the Home Office.

Understanding our sector

From early childhood, right through to today when he takes his young children to clubs and activities, Marc has had an almost daily interaction with the sport and physical activity sector. He understands the importance of CIMSPA’s work in setting high standards and the potential impact that work has on millions of people’s lives. Tenacious, determined and resilient, as well as a team player, Marc will advocate for CIMSPA at the highest policy levels in the UK and harness the talents of our stakeholders to help CIMSPA achieve its objectives and make the UK’s sport and physical activity sector one of the best in the world.

Marc’s immediate priorities will be:

■ Getting to know the CIMSPA team properly and the work they do.
■ Obtaining a better understanding of our relationships with stakeholders, so we can manage these relationships properly and create a solid value proposition for all members and partners.
■ Refreshing the board, welcoming new talent and engaging their expertise and knowledge, to join the existing board members.

I’d also like to take this opportunity to thank our outgoing chair, Andy Reed, for all of his hard work over the last year. It’s been a real pleasure working with him.

Cidesco World Congress set for Stockholm

Visitors to the Cidesco World Congress and Exhibition next year will be offered the opportunity to explore the Nordic spa, beauty and wellness industry – and its influence on the rest of the world.

Organised by the global spa therapy standard setter Cidesco, the event – from 6 to 9 September 2018 – will take place in Stockholm, Sweden, with the theme of ‘Beauty of the Northern Lights’.

The four-day conference will include educational talks examining the spa, beauty and wellness practices popular in Nordic culture, as well as an exhibition and lecture programme, which is open to trade visitors. Lectures will feature a number of keynote speakers, who will discuss the latest trends, procedures, ingredients, business management skills and financial advice. Cidesco will also hold a general assembly during the event.

“The congress will be in my home city of Stockholm, which will be an important occasion for our Nordic neighbours,” said Cidesco president Anna-Cari Gund.

“We hope to have a fantastic turnout as we discuss the advancement of standards and immerse our delegates in the beauty and wellbeing our countries are known for.”

ROYAL FAMILY

Harry and Meghan ‘potent mix’ for tourism

As the global spotlight falls on the soon-to-be married Prince Harry and Meghan Markle, experts are predicting a welcome boost to Britain’s tourism industry from the upcoming Royal Wedding.

Historically, weddings for members of the Royal Family have put the eyes of the world on Britain, with the UK economy benefitting as a result.

“The number one reason overseas visitors come to the UK is our history, our heritage and our pageantry – royalty is absolutely key to all of that,” said Bernard Donoghue, director of the Association of Leading Visitor Attractions.

“The combination of Prince Harry’s global fame, Meghan Markle’s global fame as an actress, her being American and Britain being much more affordable than it was two years ago, really makes for a potent mix.”

Data from the Office for National Statistics showed the wedding of Prince William and Kate Middleton significantly helped British tourism. In 2011, 30.6 million people visited the UK, an increase of 800,000 on the previous year’s figures.

In April that year – the month the wedding took place – visitor numbers year-on-year increased by 350,000 and Buckingham Palace visitor numbers grew by almost 50 per cent.

Eureka! digiPlaySpace proves a hit

Eureka!, the popular children’s museum in Halifax, Yorkshire, is on track for its busiest year in two decades, thanks in part to a visiting exhibition – an “interactive digital playground”.

After attracting 60,000 visitors over the summer period, Eureka! has announced the award-winning digiPlaySpace exhibition will now stay on at the museum until April 2018.

It is the first time digiPlaySpace has been hosted in Europe and the exhibition, which was developed in 2012 for TIFF Kids at the Toronto International Film Festival, lets children play with robots, learn to code, play games and interact with new technologies, and explore light and sound in physical and creative ways.

“We were proud to be the first museum in Europe to host digiPlaySpace and are so excited that children locally and nationwide have more time to come and visit us to experience it,” said Leigh-Anne Stradeski, CEO of Eureka!

“It’s gone down a storm with parents and children alike and our staff love it too. Each exhibit offers a glimpse of what the future of museum interaction looks like.”

Safety tests on the way for drone operators in Britain

Attractions operators using or considering using drones in Britain will have to take safety awareness tests to operate them, according to government legislation set to be introduced next year.

The proposed bill, which will be published in spring 2018, means owners of drones weighing more than 250g will have to register their device and pass a test to legally use it.

A ‘Flying High Challenge’ has also been launched to commercialise drone use in the UK.

At the IAAPA Expo in Orlando, Florida, former White House advisor Lisa Ellman laid out the opportunities drones could offer attractions, but said lack of regulation is hindering the commercial use of such devices as policy fails to keep up with the advancing technology.

“The technology has moved so quickly forward that what used to be considered a toy is now a tool of industry,” said Ellman.

Ricardo Walker started his career in the fitness industry 18 years ago, as a personal trainer, having previously worked in IT sales. He now works as a freelance personal trainer and internal quality assurer for Discovery Learning.

Tell us about your career
“I have worked in the fitness industry for the past 18 years. I started out as a freelance personal trainer, and delivered circuit training classes at the Queen Mother Sport Centre in London for five years. After gaining my teaching certificate and assessor award I worked as a freelance tutor and assessor for the Priory Sixth Form Sport College in Orpington, Kent, where I taught level 2 Gym and level 3 Personal Training. After a number of successful years working with clients and training companies, I joined Discovery Learning as a full-time tutor, I was then promoted to the role of internal verifier, and I’m now responsible for quality assurance for all of our tutors and assessors.”

Why did you want to get into the industry?
“Fitness was, and has always been, my biggest passion. After working in corporate IT sales for 17 years I decided I wanted to do something I was truly passionate about, and so, at the age of 37, I became a personal trainer.”

What is your favourite part of your job?
“As a tutor I love creating fun and interactive lessons that inspire and engage my students, I’m driven by the opportunity to impact a student’s learning experience. As a personal trainer, I love working with and training my clients. It’s so much fun.”

What career advice would you give to young people trying to break into the industry?
“You must have the ability to motivate yourself and others, as well as a keen interest in your own fitness and wellbeing. I would also advise people looking to get into personal training to have a solid understanding of anatomy. The more you understand the body and how it works, the easier it is to spot potential problems.”

What changes would you like to see in the industry?
“I would like to see trainers equipped with the knowledge and expertise to be able to deal with the increasing number of medical conditions relating to lifestyle and inactivity.”
The health club banking on it

Leisure Opportunities takes a look inside the Mayfair bank earmarked for Equinox's latest development

Luxury health club operator Equinox has converted a historic bank building in London's Mayfair into a gym, spa and member's lounge, with the opening scheduled for later this month.

The ground floor, basement and mezzanine of 12 St James's Street have been transformed by architects Woods Bagot and interior designer Joyce Wang into “an intimate, science-fuelled environment that awes with beguiling spaces and exceptional details”.

External alterations to the building, renamed ‘E St James’s’, have been kept to a minimum, although new louvres have been added to the basement-level façade. Internally, major structural modifications have been made to the mezzanine to accommodate the club’s cardio zone and treadmills.

Speaking about her design approach, Wang told Leisure Opportunities: “The interiors are clad with beautiful and rare marble, which we have retained.

“We inherited this amazing architecture, but at the same time we wanted to create an interior design that is characterised by bold modern forms and materials to give the space a new life.”

Facilities in the club include strength and cardio training zones, a private Pilates studio, a regeneration room, a cafe and lounge and a steam room and spa.

The latter is focused on regeneration and will offer treatments including targeted cryo-therapy, cryo-facials and cryo-peels, bema vascular therapy, compression therapy, oxygen facials and performance massages.

A £350-per-month membership package comes with an Equinox ‘wellbeing passport’ that grants access to all of the operator’s clubs across the US and Canada.

Members can also undertake a hyper-personalised training programme with Equinox’s most elite personal trainers, which includes an assessment involving a 3D body scan, active and resting metabolic rate tests, blood pressure, functional movement screening and an in-body composition analysis.

Equinox has also appointed its first experience director to take on the role of concierge, while a complimentary gym laundry valet service means gym-users can collect their washed, ironed and prepared kits when they check in.

E at St James’s is the second Equinox property to open in London, following the arrival in 2012 of Equinox Kensington. A third health club is scheduled to launch in Shoreditch in 2019.
The spa hotel that thinks its a boat

Spa and hotel designs are becoming more creative, as the latest arrival at Southampton port shows.

At first glance it may appear as just another cruise ship moored in Southampton – but look closer and you will see it is, in fact, a new spa hotel.

UK-based boutique hotel operator Harbour Hotels’ latest property occupies a prominent spot at Southampton port’s Ocean Village marina and mimics the design of a super-yacht, helping it blend into its surroundings.

The 91-bedroom Southampton Harbour Hotel is owned by property developer Nicolas James Group and will be operated by Harbour Hotels on behalf of its owner.

Facilities at the hotel include a HarSPA-branded spa, featuring seven treatment rooms and a specialist mud room, where mineral-rich mud, heat and steam are used to create an immersive spa experience.

Treatments at the spa include facials and body therapies supplied by ESPA, and there is also a ‘men-only’ menu, as well as treatments specifically designed for pregnant women.

Elsewhere, the hotel’s top floor features a rooftop destination bar, kitchen and club called ‘HarBAR on 6th’, with outdoor fire pits and a wood-fired pizza oven.

The hotel is one part of a larger regeneration project looking to transform the Ocean Village marina into a premium waterfront destination. In addition to work on the hotel, the latest project includes an 82-unit residential development, comprising a commercial zone on the ground level and residential apartments located on the upper levels. Parking is provided in an underground parking facility.

The project has also employed the services of AECOM to oversee project and cost management for the development.

The Southampton site is the 10th in Harbour Hotels’ growing portfolio of boutique hotels.
The seventh proposed stadium for the 2022 FIFA World Cup in Qatar will be constructed using shipping containers and will be completely demounted and rebuilt elsewhere after the tournament.

The design of the Ras Abu Aboud Stadium – which will have a capacity of 40,000 and host matches up to the quarter-finals stage – has been revealed, with World Cup organisers saying “it will change the way host nations deliver mega-event facilities”.

Architecture firms Fenwick Iribarren (FI-A), Schlaich Bergermann Partner and Hilson Moran have devised a modular structure using building blocks that can easily be taken apart when required. Recyclable materials will be used to boost sustainability, with even the shipping containers

The demountable nature of the structure means it could be rebuilt in its entirety elsewhere.

Innovation has always been central to our plans for delivering a historic FIFA World Cup that leaves a legacy for Qatar and the world.

Hassan Al Thawadi
used to transport the materials becoming part of the stadium.

The demountable nature of the structure means it will either be rebuilt in its entirety elsewhere – in Qatar or another country – or separated into different sections that will be redistributed to create smaller facilities. Everything from the roof to the rows of seating can be recycled in this way, and the architects have said the venue could even re-appear at a future World Cup.

Once the stadium has been removed post-tournament, a 450,000sq m (4.8 million sq ft) waterfront leisure and commercial development will be built in its place on the shoreline of the Arabian Gulf, next to Corniche Beach.

“Innovation has always been central to our plans for delivering a historic FIFA World Cup that leaves a legacy for Qatar and the world, and there is no better example of this than the design of Ras Abu Aboud Stadium,” said Hassan Al Thawadi, secretary general of Qatar’s Supreme Committee for Delivery & Legacy.

“This venue offers the perfect legacy, capable of being reassembled in a new location in its entirety or built into numerous small sports and cultural venues. All of this in a stadium that delivers the atmosphere fans expect at a World Cup and which we will build in a more sustainable way than ever before. I’m confident Ras Abu Aboud will become a blueprint for future mega-event planners to follow.”

Ft-A Senior Partner and architect Mark Fenwick said the modular approach requires fewer materials, creates less waste, reduces the carbon footprint and decreases construction time to as little as three years.●

“This venue offers the perfect legacy, capable of being reassembled in its entirety or built into small sports venues.

A unique and exciting opportunity has arisen for a strategic catering lead to join one of the premier day visitor attractions in the UK due to the forthcoming retirement of the current postholder.

Located on the edge of the New Forest and welcoming over one million guests annually, Paultons, Home of Peppa Pig World, is still a private family owned and run company.

This is a position for an experienced catering professional who is looking for the next step in what will already have been a successful career.

Reporting to the Commercial Director the role has direct responsibility for all food and beverage aspects of the Park including corporate functions, staff facilities and miscellaneous events.

The role will also have full responsibility for budget planning and control, implementing robust purchasing and stock control procedures to maximise profit and margins.

The department currently has a turnover in excess of £5 million annually.

Excellent salary and benefits package on offer for the right candidate. (commensurate with the senior level of the role)

APPLY NOW: http://lei_sr?a=x0b0L
We are seeking passionate and driven individuals who have great customer service skills and are looking to be part of an exciting and diverse organisation.

The Historic Dockyard is an award-winning visitor attraction and one of the UK’s leading independent museums. We are the most complete dockyard of the Age of Sail and we tell an extraordinary story, carved over 400 years.

HMS Victory was built here; Vice-Admiral Nelson joined his first ship here and thousands of men and women came here to build and repair ships for the Royal Navy.

Today, we welcome over 170,000 visitors annually who experience eight galleries, three historic warships – including a Cold War Submarine and a working Victorian Ropery.

We pride ourselves on our high level of visitor experience and see our staff at the core of the operation, making the difference from a good visit to an excellent one.

Two new exciting opportunities have arisen to join our Visitor Operations team which are:

- Visitor Operations Team Duty Manager – Staffing
- Visitor Operations Team Duty Manager – Health and Safety

You will provide the essential support to manage and train a diverse team that delivers a range of programmes; from guided and costumed tours to gallery assistants to holiday activities.

The Visitor Operations Team Duty Managers will work closely with the Visitor Operations Manager to support the implementation and delivery of The Historic Dockyard’s visitor experience.

These roles will also take on the function of daily duty management on a rotational basis, alongside other frontline managers.

During the open season (February - November) these roles will be expected to work one weekend day each as part of a five-day working week.

The timescale for recruitment:
Deadline for Applications - 12 December 2017
First Round Interviews - 15 December 2017
Second Round Interviews - 18 December 2017
Please make sure you are available for the highlighted interview dates.

Our mission is to save wildlife through conservation action and engaging people with the natural world. We achieve this mission through operating two zoos; Bristol Zoo Gardens and the Wild Place Project, and through our formal and informal education, conservation and science programmes.

Established in 1836, Bristol Zoo Gardens is the fifth oldest zoo in the world. The Wild Place Project was launched in 2013 on a large, rural site in South Gloucestershire and has enjoyed rapid expansion since its inception.

As the largest visitor attraction in the South West, our zoos have welcomed over 90 million guests and through our national and international field conservation programmes, we have helped save a significant number of species from extinction. We offer popular undergraduate and postgraduate degree programmes in collaboration with local universities and our award-winning education team has taught generations of school children the value of nature, wildlife and the impact our society has on the world.

We are now seeking a new Chief Executive to lead the Society through its next phase of development. In partnership with the newly appointed Chief Zoological Officer, you will ensure that our mission is delivered via an amazing visitor experience and through high-quality conservation, research and education.

Our new Chief Executive will have senior leadership experience gained in the leisure or visitor attraction sectors, ideally in organisations with multiple service lines. With strong commercial acumen, you will be able to articulate a clear vision and strategy to ensure increasing visitor numbers and financial sustainability for the Society. If you have the vision and passion to lead a values-based and committed team at this exciting point in our history, we very much look forward to hearing from you.

Two excellent opportunities have arisen to work within the University of Portsmouth sport and recreation department. This is an exciting time to be joining the University as we will soon be investing 50 million pound to build a major new indoor sports facility which is due to open in September 2020.

We are responsible for managing the University sports facilities and associated programmes and have over 3000 student, staff and community members, contributing to over 400,000 visits per year.

We currently deliver a wide range of programmes and services across these facilities and the new development means we will be expanding our health and fitness provision even further.

We are looking for confident, approachable people to join our highly motivated fitness team and they must be physically able and have experience to deliver a wide range of fitness classes. Reporting to the Health and Fitness Officer, these roles are primarily delivery based and involve teaching approximately 10 classes and multiple training programmes and PT sessions per week.

In addition to all of the above they largely focus on delivering an excellent customer experience, engaging with our members and ensuring the facilities are clean and safe.

Occasionally project work, with guidance from management, may be required to support the development of the health, fitness and wellbeing programmes.

An enhanced Criminal Records Bureau check is required for these positions.

It is the policy of the University to only accept applications submitted using the University’s application form. All applications for this position will be processed and conducted in compliance with UK legislation relevant at that time.
Duty Manager
Crook Log Leisure Centre, Bexleyheath, United Kingdom
£18,000 - £20,000

We are looking to recruit a Duty Manager at Crook Log Leisure Centre, which is a very busy leisure centre within the Bexley Contract.

Reporting to the Centre Manager, the successful candidate will be responsible for the operational management of the centre including health and safety, customer care and leading and managing staff. An NPLQ is essential and First Aid at Work certificate and Pool Plant Operators qualification is desirable as well as a recognised Leisure Management qualification.

The successful candidate should have extensive knowledge of the leisure industry. Excellent communication skills, flexibility and a commitment to customer service are essential.

Trainee Duty Manager
North Solihull Sports Centre, Solihull, United Kingdom, £15,600 - £16,640

North Solihull Sports Centre seek a hard working, motivated individual to join our friendly team.

Working with the Duty Managers, the successful candidate will help to oversee the day to day operation and management of the operational team. This will include providing hands on support to individual departments at peak times to ensure the smooth and efficient operation of the facility. This role will involve mornings, evenings and weekend rota’d shifts.

To achieve this, the Centre will fully commit to providing comprehensive training to the successful candidate. This will include a range of industry accredited courses such as a Pool Plant Operators Course, First Aid at Work Qualification and Level 2 Food Hygiene. This will be supported through extensive internal training.

The Centre is keen to receive applications from individuals with industry experience or those that are interested in a career in leisure and who have a passion for service excellence and are committed to developing their own knowledge and experience. The role is considered as a stepping stone to a Duty Management position.

A collaborative, flexible, customer focused approach is essential. A National Pool Lifeguard Qualification is desirable but not essential as training can be provided. It will involve a 5 day course over 1 week so please ensure you can be available for this.

APPLICATIONS BY: 15/12/17 (INTERVIEWS MAY BE PROCESSED THROUGHOUT THIS PERIOD)
