Lord’s proposes £200m revamp

Marylebone Cricket Club (MCC), owner of the Lord’s cricket ground in London, has announced plans to redevelop the venue into the ‘finest cricket ground in the world’.

The phased plan – estimated to cost up to £200m – will commence with the redevelopment of the Warner Stand in the autumn of 2014 and finish with the reconstruction of the Compton and Edrich Stands in 2027.

When complete, the capacity will increase by 2,700 to 32,000. The Masterplan has been informed by MCC’s ten-year Strategic Plan, which was adopted in late 2012. An MCC Ground Working Party has worked closely with architects Populous in designing the plans.

A spokesperson for MCC said: “The Masterplan reflects the importance placed on retaining the size of both the main and nursery grounds as well as establishing individual, architecturally-significant stands.”

£85m wildlife park plans for Glasgow

Wildside World is sharing plans with the local Glasgow and South Lanarkshire communities for an £85m wildlife development.

The attraction would be situated at Cuningar Loop, opposite the Glasgow Commonwealth Village, and consist of three biospheres: polar, temperate and tropical. It would also have restaurants and a hotel and open shortly after the 2014 Games as a legacy project. Cuningar Loop has sat derelict for the past 40 years.

Detailed plans will be submitted in summer but Wildside World, along with partners Sir Robert McAlpine and Ashley House, is currently canvassing local opinion.

Steve Minion, director of Wildside World, said: “The consultation events are an opportunity for us to share our vision with the local people and unveil some of the images of what Wildside will be like, and what it will bring to the region.”

The English and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) has announced it has signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to deliver £96m towards community cricket over the next four years.

The agreement with the ECB's Recreational Assembly was signed on 8 May during a day of meetings at the Kia Oval, which culminated in the ECB's annual meeting.

ECB chair Giles Clarke said: “During the winter we have diligently worked up detailed four-year plans which resulted today in the completion of MOUs with the first class and recreational game and the commitment to invest £96m into community cricket during that period.”

He explained 2012 had been a challenging season, particularly due to the poor weather that severely damaged facilities. However, Clarke said: “I have been amazed and delighted at the number of clubs that could continue playing through such terrible conditions and, in the first class game, the amount of cricket that was staged is a testimony to the decision to invest in such effective drainage systems.”

More children played sport in lead up to London 2012

The number of children participating in sport increased significantly in the six months leading up to London 2012, results from the DCMS’ Taking Part Survey reveal. The percentage of children aged 11 to 15 years old who had participated in sport in the week before they were surveyed was 94.4 per cent for the 12 months to the end of September 2012. This was up from 86.6 per cent for the 12 months to the end of March 2012. For children aged 5 to 10 years old, 76 per cent had participated in sport outside of school.

Pop-up squash court opens at Westfield

England Squash & Racketball has opened a pop-up squash shop in a vacant retail space at Westfield Stratford in London, as part of The Big Hit campaign to get more people playing the sport.

The shop allows customers to try their hand at squash, get taster lessons from qualified coaches, and to find out where their nearest local facilities are to try the sport for free.

Part of a nationwide tour covering 10 cities the original pop-up shop was located in the Manchester Corn Exchange last month.

England squash player Laura Massasso said: “Squash is the perfect sport to put in the ‘shop window’ and because we play on courts not much bigger than a shop the experience for shoppers to pick up a racket and have a go gives them a real feel for how much fun the game can be. There is so much redundant retail space on Britain's high streets, that making good use of it to get the public playing a sport like squash is so blindingly simple.”

Badminton centre gets go-ahead

Milton Keynes Council has approved plans for a new £22m National Badminton Arena at The National Bowl.

The new arena will include a 2,500-seat arena, 17 badminton courts, six indoor tennis courts, six outdoor tennis courts, a gym, pool, conference rooms, administration offices and 27-room accommodation.

The move was inspired by the demand for badminton courts, the desire to replicate tournament conditions in a training environment for Team GB and the council’s ambition to become an international sporting city.

The centre is scheduled to open in May 2015 before Great Britain’s elite badminton players begin their bid to qualify for Rio 2016.

Chief executive of Badminton England Adrian Christy said: “We are experiencing a massive demand for badminton all over the country but in Milton Keynes specifically, the demand for courts outstrips the supply by some way. We are also determined to ensure our players have the best possible training environment and the creation of an Arena will do just that. Details: http://lei.sr?a=Z1b4N

New research reveals a fitness partner who keeps verbal encouragement to a minimum might be a better motivator than one who is more vocal.

Conducted by Brandon Irwin, assistant professor of kinesiology at Kansas State University, the study got participants to exercise with a looped video recording.

Participants were split in two groups and exercised with a partner in a looped video recording, who they were told was slightly more skilled than them.

The video recording played to participants in the second group offered constant verbal encouragement, whereas the one played to the first group did not.

Irwin said: “When exercising with someone who is slightly better and who is not verbally encouraging, participants exercised longer than if conditions were the same but that person was verbally encouraging them.” Details: http://lei.sr?a=a5g2n

Young men who are obese in their early 20s are significantly more likely to develop serious health problems by the time they reach middle age, according to new research.

The authors tracked the health of 6,500 22-year-old men, all born in 1955, up to the age of 55. The research found obese participants were eight times as likely as their normal weight peers to get diabetes, four times as likely to potentially fatal blood clots, and twice as likely to have a heart attack. Westminster City Council and Willmott Dixon have announced £19m proposals for sports and leisure in the north west of the borough, which will deliver a 40 per cent increase in facilities.

The plans include a new Moberly Sports Centre with two swimming pools and large sports hall and gym, and a new sports facility at Jubilee Leisure Centre.

The cost will be entirely funded by Willmott Dixon, which will develop 156 new affordable homes on the current leisure sites.

Following feedback from consultation periods in April and July last year the Moberly facility will now include an eight-court sports hall, boxing hall and multi-use hall. The Jubilee suite will include a three-court sports hall and flexible community and activity space.

Results from the first comprehensive analysis of the value of arts and culture to the national economy have been revealed, showing turnover in the sector to be £12.4bn.

Completed by the Centre for Economics and Business Research (CEBR), the analysis found arts and culture generate more per pound invested than the health, wholesale and retail, and professional and business services sectors.

Arts and culture make up 0.4 per cent of GDP while attracting less than 0.1 per cent of government spending.

At least £856m per annum of spending by tourists visiting the UK can be attributed directly to arts and culture and the industry provides 0.45 per cent of total UK employment.

Arts Council England is now considering how it can capitalise on areas outlined in the report such as cultural education and driving tourism.

TOURISM

Partnership to grow UK tourism

VisitBritain has announced a £2m, two-year partnership with Emirates airlines, as one of a number of government-driven initiatives to grow UK tourism by 29 per cent by 2020. The partnership aims to bolster the convenience of Emirates’ Dubai hub to connect travellers from South East Asia, Australia, India and the Middle East to Britain.

The government is looking to increase ties with the travel industry and key public and private sector bodies to deliver an additional £8.7bn in foreign exchange earnings through tourism.

Culture secretary Melissa Miller said tourism is central to the government’s growth strategy and is worth £115bn each year.

The government’s growth strategy for the sector is focused around four objectives: building Britain’s international image; increasing engagement with the travel trade; broadening the product range for inbound tourists; and making it easier to get to Britain. In the coming year growth markets such as Brazil, China, India and the Gulf will be targeted along with established markets such as the US, France and Germany. Details: http://lei.sr?a=K4C2l

It has gone live - on the international app store - and is free for people around the world to download before they arrive. More than 500 Irish tourism organisations have registered their “gestures” for the new app. The Irish Hotels Federation, B&B Ireland, Heritage Ireland, the Restaurants Association of Ireland (RAI) and Good Food Ireland are all encouraging members to take part.

“Gestures” include: a tour of Kenmare in a vintage Buick; a free seaweed bath in Leenane; and tea or coffee and home baking at B&B Ireland homes. Details: http://lei.sr?a=R4l8Z

VisiTScotland has just launched a new strategy, Delivering a Golden Legacy, to capitalise and build upon the success of the 2012 Olympics to generate inbound tourism. The aim of the strategy is to get the government, industry and public bodies working together in order to increase inbound tourism to 40 million visitors by 2020 (from 31m in 2012). Achieving this will generating an addition £8.7bn in tourism revenue and create some 200,000 additional jobs through the UK.

The strategy highlights 20 key source markets that will be the focus of VisitBritain’s marketing activities over the next eight years. For each market an individual strategy is being produced that will set growth targets and actions to be taken to improve the UK’s share of their tourism market.

The need for a coherent and co-ordinated strategy that focuses resources on 20 key overseas markets is important, not least because VisitBritain’s funding from Government has been decreasing for almost 15 years. For example, since 2007 VisitBritain’s funding for overseas marketing has decreased from £35.5m to £22.8m this year – that’s a 36 per cent decrease in nominal terms or a 42 per cent decrease in real terms. This means that VisitBritain has just over £1m to spend on marketing the UK in each of its 20 priority markets. In marketing terms this is an infinitesimal amount. To compare, Ireland’s tourism budget is £50m and the country spends as much on advertising in the UK each year as VisitBritain spends in 20 overseas markets.

If this lack of funding isn’t already problematic, the Treasury has just told most departments that they must reducing spending by 10 pre cent as part of the Government’s austerity programme. If DCMS makes the cuts unilaterally across all its agencies, VisitBritain’s expenditure will fall below £20m. Add this to the fall in the value of the pound against other currencies and the decrease in their spending power will be in the order of 30 per cent.

At this level of decrease, the viability of successfully implementing the Golden Legacy Strategy would be questionable.

Hospitability, leisure and tourism (HLT) is one of the real success stories of the global economy and one that requires an ever increasing number of qualified managers. At the same time, gaining a university degree is an expensive business. Therefore, students understandably want the reassurance that their HLT management degree is of high-quality and fully reflects current industry practice in order to prepare them for a career in the real world.

One way of gauging how in touch a college or university programme is with industry is to look at the range of visiting speakers it has as part of its curriculum. Here are just some of the industry players who have spoken to students at UK colleges in recent months: Heston Blumenthal; Raymond Blanc FIH; Keith Williams, CEO, British Airways; Carlo Petrini, founder of the Slow Food movement; chef Mark Flannegan; and Cris Tarrant of BDRC Continental.

It is important that students are inspired by major personalities who can add some ‘stardust’ to their studies. Coming home to tell your friends and family that you spent the day cooking with Heston Blumenthal is certainly going to make an impression.

However, students will still get a great deal of value and insight from listening to a wide range of people who are passionate and dedicated to their work. Visiting speakers who are just a few years into their careers will be very instructive to students.

HLT programme coordinators are in constant need of new industry speakers. Did you study HLT management? Have you been back to your college to speak? Are you passionate about your work? Remember that passion is infectious. Find your local college that delivers HLT programmes, build a relationship and be sure to enquire about speaking opportunities.

It’s very satisfying to be a visiting speaker at any time in your career. It’s refreshing to interact with the students and you often come away having learned something too. It will also mean that your company or business makes a very good impression and you will get the first pick of the graduates.

Boutique hotel group The House Collection has officially opened its first property in a Grade-II listed building in Ely. Poets House includes 21 bedrooms with full butler service, The Dining Room restaurant, and banqueting, private dining and catering options for events.

Local produce and growers have been sourced for the hotel’s menu including several exclusive new lines such as spirits from the Ely Gin Company and local chocolates and sausages.

The next House Collection property to open will be Paddocks House in June, located in a 17th-century country house between Cambridge and Newmarket.

The boutique hotel group has been established by David Toulson-Burke, Ian Cross and Jonathan Baker who have more than 50 years experience between them and previously worked in the senior management team at The Belfry, Birmingham. The portfolio will consist of properties no larger than 45 bedrooms based on the small luxury house concept. Details: http://lei.sr?a=dgH8Q

Aberdeen City Council has selected Muse Developments its preferred bidder for the 2.4-acre St Nicholas House brownfield site in the heart of the city. The Muse proposal, which would be completed during 2016, would see the development of a boutique hotel, restaurants, cafes and shops, offices, public space and a new civic square.

The council will lease the development from Muse and receive a proportion of rental profits for 35 years, after which the site will transfer to council ownership. Details: http://lei.sr?a=L3a1A

Dundee Heritage Trust has received a £1.48m grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund for the Verdant Works High Mill Open Gallery Project.

Works will include the restoration of the A-listed Verdant Works by creating a space for the display of the Trust’s collections and for cultural, educational and community events. Details: http://lei.sr?a=g7v2m

Community facilities for East Manchester

Plans to transform part of East Manchester with new sports and community facilities have been granted council approval, with work due to begin later this year.

The joint venture between Manchester City Council, Manchester City Football Club and urban regeneration company New East Manchester will see a 16-acre site in Beswick redeveloped with a new leisure centre, pool and school. A sports research centre, offering academic research and diagnostic facilities, is proposed for development in the project’s second phase.

Deputy leader of Manchester City Council, Jim Battle, said: “Both planning approval and the funding green light for Connell College represent two major hurdles for the transformation of Beswick and represents the culmination of a lot of hard work.”

Green light to transform Celtic Park

Celtic Football Club announced that Glasgow City Council has passed a Celtic planning proposal which will see the transformation of Celtic Park.

Following the decision, the first phase of development will see the creation of a new public realm area, that aims to dramatically change Celtic Park.

The development will provide a new pedestrian avenue leading up to the stadium for supporters, a new public space, and the whole area leading to the stadium will be fully landscaped.

Work will now begin on putting contracts in place and it is hoped that the first phase of the development will be completed in time for the start of the Glasgow 2014 Commonwealth Games. The completion of further phases of development will also see a range of additional facilities around the stadium.

Celtic chief executive Peter Lawwell said: “This really is fantastic news for the club and is something which will allow us to completely transform Celtic Park, providing a stunning new public realm area for the benefit of our supporters.”

Swindon Borough Council Leisure Options Appraisal

Soft Market Testing

Swindon has an ambitious agenda for driving economic growth across the borough and the Council has a proven track record of working successfully with a range of partners from the private, public and community/voluntary sectors to deliver services to its residents. Most recently the Council transferred an iconic leisure centre to the private sector spearheading the development of a regional leisure destination.

Swindon Borough Council is now keen to embark on the next stage of ensuring a sustainable future for leisure provision across the borough and engage with the market place to explore options for its remaining Leisure facilities. These are both exciting and challenging times for the Council as it seeks to retain a strong offer in the borough against unprecedented budget challenges. It is seeking a partner(s) with the vision to develop the Leisure offer whilst significantly reducing the level of financial subsidy currently invested by the Council in facilities and securing capital investment in the facilities.

The scope of this potential commissioning project focuses on how the Council’s current facilities (7 Leisure Centres and 3 Golf Courses) may be best configured and managed to enable provision at a significantly reduced cost. This may result in a number of differing solutions for any, or a combination, of the following:

i) Outright disposal of a facility(ies) – reshaping and/or enhancing the existing leisure offer
ii) Outright disposal of a facility(ies) for an alternative use which is still aligned to the Council’s Strategic Objectives; and
iii) Transfer of operations to a third party on a fixed term contractual basis.

The Council is therefore looking for interested parties to attend a Soft Market Testing meeting (discussions with interested groups relating to potential future opportunities) at the Council Offices on either Wednesday 5th, Thursday 6th or Friday 7th June 2013 that will take the form of individual one hour meetings with each organisation.

The Council welcomes interest from all organisations including Property Developers, traditional Leisure Centre Management Service providers, Community/Voluntary Sector Groups and Charitable Organisations. Please note that the Council reserves the right to select organisations to participate in this dialogue and that participation in this exercise will not guarantee any inclusion in a potential future procurement process. Please also note that the Council is keen to discuss options for all of the facilities or individual buildings in their entirety but will not enter into discussions for separate parts of these buildings during this process.

To receive more information and register your interest in participating in the Soft Market Testing, please contact the following e-mail address: btbusinessperformanceteam@swindon.gov.uk quoting the reference ‘Leisure Services Soft Market Testing June 2013’, and stating the organisation you are representing.

The closing date for registering an interest in attending the Soft Market Testing days is 12 pm (noon) Tuesday 28th May 2013.

I am delighted to be able to update you on the industry driven, professional registers that SkillsActive is launching this year. I spoke about these with immense enthusiasm at the start of 2013 and I am now extremely pleased to say that the pilot of our third new Register, The Register of Children's Activity Professionals (Capre), is now fully live!

Having launched the pilot in early May, it has been fantastic to see individuals looking to increase their level of professionalism and join the Register. Members of Capre deliver vitally important services for children and young people in the area of multi-disciplinary games and sports, and all types of physical activity.

The pilot phase will run for four months and following its conclusion there will be an evaluation of the system, allowing SkillsActive and our partners Compass to fine-tune the final details, ready for a full launch later in the autumn of this year.

It is completely free to join the pilot, with membership lasting for 12 months. New Capre members also receive a welcome pack, benefits and discounts. To find out more, visit our new website www.capregister.org or find us on Facebook and Twitter.

Next on the agenda is the Register of Personal Development Practitioners in Sport (RPDPS), which launches this summer. The register recognises the skills and expertise of those working with elite athletes and players who are part of the NGB Talent Pathway, Lottery funded programmes or those in the professional performance environment.

Finally, the Register of Aquatic Professionals (RAPs) and the Playwork Register, are both still currently in their pilot stages. RAPs has got off to a fantastic start, with nearly 1,000 industry professionals applying already, and it is now the final call for those interested in receiving their 12 months free membership.

An intern learns the ropes behind the scenes at Glasgow Museums

Twenty successful museum applicants have been announced for Museums Galleries Scotland’s Intern Programme for 2013/14.

The programme is aimed at graduates from a range of disciplines and backgrounds as a paid alternative to post-graduate study and a route of entry for employment in museums. In 2011 the programme attracted 3,200 hopeful applicants.

MGS provides support for the host museums, monitors and evaluates programmes and identifies opportunities for skills sharing.

Recruitment of 20 interns will begin this month with placements to begin in September running through to August next year.

MGS chief executive, Joanne Orr, said: “We developed our Interns Programme to secure a sustainable future for skills sharing within the sector. The programme’s success can quite simply be put down to the fact that it meets both the sectors’ and the interns’ needs.”

The organisations already jointly fund the BBC National Orchestra of Wales.

Director of Public Programmes
Attractive package commensurate with skills and experience

The Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew is the world-leader in plant diversity science, a UNESCO World Heritage Site and a major visitor attraction that shows the importance of plants in all our lives. Kew’s mission is to inspire and deliver science-based plant conservation worldwide, enhancing the quality of life. Following the appointment of a new Director last year and a subsequent restructuring that aims to strengthen Kew’s visitor offer, we are seeking to appoint a Director of Public Programmes to lead the visitor attraction strategy.

Reporting to the Director and a member of the Executive Board, the Director of Public Programmes will lead a reshaped and wide ranging brief including events and festivals, marketing and communications, commercial activity, digital media, visitor services, outreach, volunteers, and community engagement and learning. At the heart of the role will be the need to raise Kew’s performance and position us as a world-leading visitor attraction that delivers an outstanding on-site experience.

You will bring ambition, commercial focus and the leadership and management experience to re-invigorate Kew’s public offering. With responsibility for a team of over 200, you will bring experience of leading major change to deliver improvements in organisational performance and income generation. This role will require energy, creativity and the desire to challenge the status quo.

You will understand the need to balance public purposes with commercial growth.

Your leadership experience will most likely have been gained in the visitor attraction, culture or heritage sectors; whatever your background, you will share our passion and will be excited by the opportunity to apply your experience in a world-renowned organisation that plays an important role in educating, informing and inspiring the public about the importance of plants.

The British Museum has revealed it is progressing on schedule for the opening of its new £135m exhibition space, due to open in March 2014.

Construction on the World Conservation and Exhibitions Centre (WCCEC) began in autumn 2011 in the north-west corner of the museum’s central London estate.

The redevelopment project is one of the largest in the museum’s 260-year history and will include a new public exhibition gallery, state-of-the-art laboratories and studios, stores for the collection and a centralised object handling facility. Four-fifths of the total cost has been raised, with £25m coming from Sainsbury Family Charitable Trusts, The Linbury Trust and Monument Trust, one of the largest gifts to the arts in the UK in recent decades. The HLF has committed a further £10m. Details: http://lei.sr?a=Z8W6V

Pandas draw crowds to Edinburgh

The Royal Zoological Society of Scotland (RZSS) has seen its income increase 53 per cent in 2012 based on figures from the previous year, partially driven by two new pandas at Edinburgh Zoo.

Visitor numbers at the park increased 51 per cent on the previous year while the society’s other attraction Highland Wildlife Park saw visitor numbers increase 25 per cent.

Favourable weather and a record number of animal births in 2012, including baby wolf cubs, are also thought to have contributed to the parks’ popularity. Pandas Tian Tian and Yang Guang arrived at Edinburgh Zoo in December 2011 as part of a 10 year loan from China. The zoo also welcomed its second polar bear Arktos at the end of 2011.

Chief executive of RZSS, Chris West, said: “All of our surplus is invested back into the animals within our collection and into conservation work around the world. The financial benefits from the pandas enables us to support many other projects, not least the renaissance plans for the 100-year-old Edinburgh Zoo.” Details: http://lei.sr?a=J4j9F
