The European Centre for Environment and Human Health has found that people are “more likely” to have better health if they live nearer the coast. Its report used data from the 2001 census undertaken in England to examine how health levels varied across the country, with responses from more than 48 million people.

Researchers from the centre looked at the proportion of people who described their health as “Good” and compared the figure with how close those participants were to the coast.

Family Action has claimed that high prices charged by attractions and service providers in the UK are preventing families from enjoying short domestic trips. The charity’s report – Breaking the Bank, Summer on a Shoestring – surveyed 2,200 families and also looked into the cost of some of the UK’s most popular days out.

Family Action: UK families ‘priced out’ of short breaks

Family Action has claimed that high prices charged by attractions and service providers in the UK are preventing families from enjoying short domestic trips.

The charity’s report – Breaking the Bank, Summer on a Shoestring – surveyed 2,200 families and also looked into the cost of some of the UK’s most popular days out.

In its conclusions, Family Action states that the average cost of a day out is around £80 and, as a result, 61 per cent of participants are looking to cut back on days out. Read more: http://lei.sr?a=R7r4f

A new study published in medical journal The Lancet has claimed that sedentary lifestyles and a lack of physical exercise are responsible for 5.3 million deaths – as many as smoking – throughout the world. The report has concluded that the problem is now so widespread that it should be treated as a pandemic. Physical inactivity is said to be the “fourth leading cause of death worldwide”.

The report stated: “A systems approach that focuses on populations and the complex interactions among the correlates of physical inactivity, rather than solely a behavioural science approach focusing on individuals, is the way forward to increase physical activity worldwide.”

FIA chief executive officer David Stalker said of the report: “The statistics reported by the researchers are certainly shocking but should not come as a surprise; the link between health and physical activity is well established.”

Four bidders for Olympic Stadium

The London Legacy Development Corporation (LLDC) has received four bids to take over the Olympic Stadium following the 2012 Games.

West Ham United Football Club – originally named as preferred bidder for the venue last year before the deal collapsed amid legal challenges – is among the latest submissions.

Meanwhile, Leyton Orient Football Club – one of the two clubs to challenge the decision to award the stadium to West Ham United – has also submitted a bid for the stadium.

The other bidders are Intelligent Transport Services in partnership with Formula One and UCFB College of Football Business. All four will now be assessed for compliance.

£19.4m legacy cash boost revealed

Sport England has announced an Olympic legacy funding boost totalling £19.4m, which is to be distributed among 377 community sports projects.

The new National Lottery investment is being made available through the Inspired Facilities programme – part of the agency’s wider Places People Play legacy vision.

Bradfield Cricket Club near Reading is among the beneficiaries of funding, with £42,650 to be used to replace facilities destroyed by fire.

Elsewhere, a derelict Royal British Legion building will become a new boxing club with the help of £50,000 awarded to Redditch Community Amateur Boxing Club.

The budget for the latest round of Inspired Facilities has been doubled after Sport England secured a £15m increase generated by strong National Lottery ticket sales.

Rugby Football League posts record £27m turnover

The Rugby Football League (RFL) has reported a record turnover of more than £27m, after distribution of funds to its member clubs reached an all-time high during 2011.

It represents an 18.5 per cent growth on revenue reported for 2010 and allowed the national governing body to make payments totalling £9.18m to clubs and other organisations.

The figure includes participation fees for the Co-operative Championship and is nearly three times the amount from five years ago.

Sports facilities ‘offer economic benefits’

New research from AECOM has found that the majority (88 per cent) of Brits believe major sports facilities deliver “significant” lifestyle changes and economic benefits throughout the UK.

YouGov carried out the study for AECOM’s Sports Report, which revealed that 54 per cent of city residents agreed more facilities were needed in their locations.

Two-thirds (67 per cent) of participants admitted they would use nearby facilities if available and 69 per cent said sports infrastructure projects encourage healthier living.

Meanwhile, the Sports Report revealed that aquatics and water sports facilities are most in demand – 40 per cent of participants agreeing that more of such venues were needed.

Bill Hanway, executive director of AECOM’s sports division, said: “Our findings show that Britons, seem keen for more opportunities to get involved in sport and recognise the fantastic benefits it can bring to a community.”

New Worthing centre topped out

A topping out ceremony has marked the latest milestone in construction of Worthing’s new £17.9m leisure complex, which will replace the West Sussex town’s Aquarena.

The new Wilkinson Eyre Architects-designed swimming pool – recently named Splashpoint – is to incorporate separate competition pools for diving and swimming when complete.

Other facilities will include children’s shallow pools, a flume, water features and a 3,854sq m (41,449sq ft) fitness suite with space for 100 stations.

Two multi-use studios, three treatment rooms and a lobby space containing a reception and a café will also form part of Splashpoint, which has a BREEAM rating of Very Good.

David Sershall, area director of contractor Morgan Sindall, said: “This innovative, striking building will provide a state-of-the-art facility for the local community to enjoy.”

Worthing Council leader Paul Yallop added: “This is a very exciting moment. It has taken a lot of sheer determination and nerve to get this project off the ground.”

Edinburgh trust ‘worth £32.5m’ to city

Edinburgh Leisure – the trust which manages sport and leisure facilities on behalf of the City of Edinburgh Council – delivers an economic return of nearly 3.5 times its funding level, according to a new independent report.

The study by Baker Tilly, reveals that Edinburgh Leisure delivers a Social Return on Investment (SROI) of at least £32.5m from an investment of around £9m. The SROI methodology estimates the economic impact of outcomes resulting from specific investments.

In the case of Edinburgh Leisure, investing in the provision of good quality, accessible and affordable services results in a more active population which, in turn, requires far less medical interventions and fewer days off work.

Among the key findings were that healthcare costs avoided through Edinburgh Leisure’s activities totalled £25.5m, while memberships and leisure cards support business by improving sickness absence costs worth £5.2m.

Green light for Horsham’s new £7.3m leisure centre project

Horsham District Council (HDC) has agreed to proceed with plans for a new £7.3m leisure centre to replace the existing Broadbridge Heath Leisure Centre, West Sussex.

The scheme is to be financed by the local authority, with work to start in summer 2015. It comes after a business case deemed the current facility to be no longer fit for purpose.

Under HDC’s plans, the new centre will be “considerably larger, more flexible and a more expensive” facility than it originally planned.

Lords publish exercise report

The House of Lords Science and Technology Committee has called on the government to place more emphasis on preventative healthcare through increasing physical activity levels in the UK.

Following its review into sport and health, the committee published a report – titled Sport and exercise science and medicine: building on the Olympic legacy to improve the nation’s health – in which it criticised a lack of awareness and appropriate training for health professionals of the benefits of exercise-based treatments.

It cites a recent survey of 48 London GP practices, which found that none were aware of the latest Physical Activity Guidelines.

The committee called the result a “missed opportunity” as the city prepares to host the Olympic Games, and also heavily criticised the coalition government for a “lack of joined-up thinking” on the Olympic health legacy.

Ex-Army lieutenant unveils London gym

James Conci Mitchell, an ex-army lieutenant, has opened an independent fitness club in Covent Garden, London.

SIX3NINE has been created within former disused office space and now houses a functional training zone offering personal training.

The club was set up mainly as an open-plan facility containing a comprehensive free weights selection. Mitchell appointed Escape Fitness to create the space as he faced a number of challenges relating to the property’s flooring.

Escape’s flooring expert, Paul Lipscombe, developed a bespoke solution for SIX3NINE, which has included levelling and screeding of the entire ground level and the hand painting of a sprint track on the floor.

When deciding on equipment for the club, Mitchell again turned to Escape Fitness and selected a wide range of kit. Two dual adjustable pulleys by Life Fitness also feature.

DMU to open new £8m facility

A new £8m leisure complex is to open at Leicester’s De Montfort University (DMU) with a two-week period of free taster sessions and tours commencing on 30 July.

The facility is to be called The Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Leisure Centre following The Queen’s visit to DMU on the first stop of the Diamond Jubilee tour.

S&P Architects – the design practice behind projects such as the London 2012 Aquatics Centre – have worked on the project, with Morgan Sindall responsible for its construction.

Among the facilities is a 485sq m (5,220sq ft) fitness suite containing more than 100 pieces of cardiovascular, resistance, functional and weights equipment supplied by Technogym.

The stations will also be supported with a communicator key, which – if purchased – will give users the opportunity to receive a range of information about their training work.

Meanwhile, the centre also boasts a 25m, six-lane swimming pool. The two-week period of taster sessions and tours will be available to the public, students and staff.

The UK’s biggest and best gym for three days of the year

For three days in September, LIW is one of the UK’s biggest and most diverse gyms encouraging health and fitness professionals to ‘have a go’ at a huge variety of new equipment and training techniques.

The Group Exercise Arena, sponsored by Les Mills will host live demos of the hottest training and fitness methods on the UK fitness scene ensuring that visiting operators are up-to-date with what makes their members and clients tick.

Outdoor Fitness: A growing opportunity for leisure

LIW has commissioned Leisure-net Solutions to produce a market intelligence report into the rapidly expanding and popular outdoor fitness sector.

The report will be outlined as part of the Educations Village programme at LIW 2012 and will be made available for download to visitors after the event has taken place.

With research questions targeted at both consumer and trade representatives, the report will analyse the size, growth and potential of the market as well as providing insight into the motivations of outdoor fitness participants.

Three key industry players will also be represented with in depth case studies into the business practices and successes of some of the leaders in the outdoor fitness field.

STA’s Shropshire Swim Academy

The Swimming Teachers’ Association (STA) will be presenting a case study during LIW 2012 which will outline the association’s work with Shropshire Council to draw up a unique joint venture project: the Shropshire Swim Academy, the first of its kind in the country.

This groundbreaking project saw STA and Shropshire Council work together as partners to deliver this innovative academy programme, which was later rolled out across all of the local authority-run leisure centres in the county.

PPA Conference to take place at LIW 2012

The Play Providers Association (PPA) will hold the Play Providers Conference 2012 at LIW this September, with the ASPIRE awards taking place at the newly re-opened Drayton Manor Hotel complex in Tamworth.

WDD Online’s Scott Brown, is to deliver a keynote session entitled “Magic of the Mouse: Bringing the Florida theme park experience to your guests” where attendees will discover what one of the world’s favourite theme parks can teach you about creating success, embracing change, leading your team and growing your business. Scott is an entertaining speaker with a sound knowledge of this sector.

The conference line up, which is aimed at indoor play and other attractions owners and managers, also includes a return for Tim Fearon of the Extraordinary Coaching Company and a session highlighting the health benefits of play in children, based on results of research with York St John’s University.

Speaking about the programme, PPA chair Janice Dunphy commented: “We are delighted to be working in partnership with LIW to bring Scott Brown back to the UK this September.

“The sessions promise to provide PPA members with inspirational leadership training relevant to our sector.”

Pulse Fitness set to unveil new circuit range to operators

At LIW 2012, Pulse Fitness is set to demonstrate its exciting new circuit range offering operators the chance to try out a safe and comfortable strength training activity with the experts from Pulse on hand to answer any questions visitors may have.

The showcase is to include pieces from eight key machines, each specifically targeting a key muscle group, positioned in a semi circle so users seamlessly move from machine to machine to achieve a total body workout.

The design and function of the equipment makes it an ideal introductory exercise method to increase physical strength.

The hydraulic cylinder design provides a softer, smoother workout thus reducing stress on joints and connective tissues. It’s also easy to use and can be made fun with the use of lights and music; making it perfect for key user groups such as children, medical rehabilitation, seniors and ladies.

The conference will include eight pieces of equipment.

New inbound tourism figures from the International Passenger Survey (IPS) “show promise at a key time” for the sector, according to national tourism agency VisitBritain.

During the year to May 2012, the total number of visits was up 3 per cent to 31.3 million on 2011 – 12.3 million of which were holiday visits.

Visitor spend for the period grew 6 per cent to £18.2bn and VisitBritain said the growth shows the international GREAT marketing campaign is proving successful.

Despite the encouraging figures, VisitBritain chair Christopher Rodrigues said there was no room for complacency and said the agency would continue its work after London 2012.

Rodrigues said: “The Games provide a wonderful platform, but tourism is a fiercely competitive business and there is no room for complacency. The real challenge comes after. “VisitBritain and its partners will roll out of the next phase of the GREAT campaign immediately after the Games to ensure that the unprecedented coverage of Britain during the Games is converted into increased visitors.”

Hilton publishes trends report

The presence of a spa is an “important factor” for consumers booking a hotel, according to a new international trends report by Hilton Hotels and Resorts (HHR).

Emerging Global Spa Trends – the hospitality operator’s comprehensive new Hilton Blue Paper – contains insights from industry experts and the founders of product brands.

The report identifies spa-goers and behaviour based on generation, as well as discussing the “increasingly savvy modern spa guest” who is more aware of treatments and products.

Meanwhile, the research has highlighted an increasing importance of men to the spa industry and how successful facilities should tailor services to the male audience.

The hotel operator is in the process of rolling out its own spa concept – eforea: spa at Hilton Champneys has expanded the medical services on offer at its luxury spa resort in Tring, Hertfordshire, in a bid to complement its existing health and wellbeing provision.

The services are based on the concept that prevention is crucial to staying fit, with guests able to meet with a variety of professionals covering all aspects of health.

Champneys has introduced the WellWoman and Wellman screening programmes to provide a full MOT, which includes blood tests and heart and lung function tests.

Meanwhile, Tring Medical Centre now offers services including injury and pain management; weight management and detox; and the Healthy Heart Programme.

A new five-year investment strategy designed to help create a “stronger and more resilient” UK heritage economy has been launched by the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF).

Amanda Levete Architects (ALA) were appointed in 2011 to work on the scheme, which will deliver a new purpose-built underground gallery and the opening up of a previously inaccessible back-of-house space to provide a new open courtyard for installation, events and a café.

The V&A has now raised £25m towards the total cost of the Exhibition Road project, which is due for completion in late 2015 and will open to the public in 2016.

Sir Paul Ruddock, chair of the V&A board of trustees, said: “Not only will the development continue to improve the presence of Exhibition Road as an international cultural hub but it will provide us with facilities to welcome more residents and visitors than ever before.”

ALA principal Amanda Levete added: “We’re re-imagining the dialogue between the V&A and Exhibition Road and creating a new public space in the cultural heart of London.”

St Fagans museum receives £11.5m funding

The Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) has made its largest ever funding award in Wales – an £11.5m grant towards the redevelopment of St Fagans: National History Museum.

Creu Hanes-Making History is designed to build on the popularity of the open-air museum near Cardiff, which first opened in 1948 and explores human life over more than 200,000 years.

Amgueddfa Cymru–National Museum Wales is planning a £25m overhaul of the museum, which will be delivered over a five-year period.

Visitors will be given the opportunity to explore Wales’ history through new exhibitions, a series of archaeological reconstructions and authentic historical buildings.

“Creu Hanes-Making History will become an exemplar project for us, demonstrating how lottery money can have a positive impact,” said the HLF’s Dr Manon Williams.

How can the hospitality industry help the young unemployed? By providing jobs and training. It is one of the very few industries in the UK creating jobs, apprenticeships, placements and career opportunities.

BHA research shows that hospitality can generate 236,000 jobs by 2015, which is half the government’s Youth Contract target for the next three years. At a major event earlier this month, key employers pledged to reduce unemployment by offering structured work placements, apprenticeships and job opportunities in the next three years.

These pledges were given in London at the first of a series of Big Conversations in Hospitality. The Big Conversation is an initiative of the Talent and Skills Leadership Group of Business in the Community (BiTC) – one of Prince Charles’s charities – and aims to boost dialogue between employers and youngsters.

The event brought together more than 140 young people and senior industry executives and was organised by Whitbread and Thistle Hotels, along with a number of other companies in conjunction with Springboard and the BHA. The aim: to encourage more hospitality companies to introduce structured work placements and apprenticeships.

Pledges were led by event chair Patrick Dempsey, the managing director of Whitbread’s hotels and restaurants division, which includes Premier Inn. Whitbread has pledged to fill half of all new jobs from the ranks of the unemployed and recruit 500 apprenticeships this year. He urged other companies to make similar pledges.

“We've made a good start but more pledges are needed – visit [link] to make yours. With more than 200,000 sector businesses, if every one offered one work placement and employed one more local person, we would meet our growth target.

The BHA is working with Springboard and BiTC to roll out more Big Conversations, both regionally and sectorally – and the central topic of the next Hospitality and Tourism Summit on 11 June 2013, organised by the BHA, will be the Big Conversation. The BHA is putting its own pledge into action.

AmbITion Scotland unveils digital fund for arts sector

AmbITion Scotland has launched the new £400,000 Make:IT:Happen fund in a bid to assist groups in capitalising on opportunities presented by digital technology.

The fund comprises four investment strands, including AmbITion Approach offering up to £5,000 towards those in the early stages of digital development.

Sustainable AmbITion also offers support worth up to £5,000 to help groups become more carbon-aware and improve green credentials through new approaches. Read more: http://lei.st/a=57rsd

Green light for £5.7m arts building at Norwich college

City College Norwich (CCN) has been granted detailed planning permission for a proposed new £5.7m building to house its creative and performing arts students.

Due to open in September 2013, the complex features a Norfolk barn-style design and is to include performing arts rehearsal spaces for dance and acting.

Digital media facilities and space for traditional art and design disciplines will also form part of the new building, which will meet the BREEAM Excellent standard. Read more: http://lei.st/a=Y6v6o

New £7m digital R&D fund for English arts groups

Arts Council England (ACE) has unveiled a new £7m digital research and development fund (R&D) alongside Nesta and the Arts and Humanities Research Council.

It follows a pilot last year, with the launch coinciding with a new creative media policy published by ACE that outlines plans for a “new era” of digital growth.

The fund is the result of a partnership between all three groups and will support collaboration between the arts, technology providers and the research community. Read more: http://lei.st/a=D3OoB

The Tanks open at Tate Modern

Tate Modern has unveiled The Tanks – one of the world’s first permanent exhibition spaces for live art, installation and performance works – housed within the former London power station’s oil tanks.

A commission from Korean artist Sung Hwan Kim is the first to be installed in the new space, which had remained vacant following the decommissioning of the Bankside Power Station in 1981.

A Tate Modern spokesperson said: “The Tanks are raw, industrial spaces which provide an anchor and home for the live art and film programmes, which have previously been presented in spaces around Tate Modern.”

The creation of The Tanks has marked the first stage of the wider £215m Tate Modern Project, which has received £50m from the government and £7m from the Greater London Authority, along with a range of other donations from foundations and individuals.

Exhibition space will increase by 60 per cent as a result of the Herzog and de Meuron-designed project, which will also include a new building adjoining the existing site. Details: http://lei.st/a=0K4S3

Councillors to reject sole bid for Felixstowe theatre

Suffolk Coastal District Council’s (SCDC) cabinet is poised to reject the sole bid to operate Felixstowe’s Spa Pavilion as a leisure and entertainment venue when it meets on 24 July.

The council had conducted a “thorough” procurement process in order to secure the future of the venue, but cabinet members have been recommended to reject the proposal.

SCDC currently invests more than £250,000 a year in the Spa Pavilion, but a “substantial” increase was needed for modernisation. Details: http://lei.st/a=z7Woc

LLDC opens new Hackney cultural centre

A new cultural centre has opened next to the Olympic Park, following the renovation of a derelict building by the London Legacy Development Corporation (LLDC).

It is anticipated that the new Hackney Wick Fish Island Cultural Centre – called The White Building – will bring together thousands of people through artistic, educational and community activities.

Facilities at the former print works include event space for community events; studio space for artists; and a café with canal side seating.

David Kohn Architects and Michael Pawlyn from Exploration Architecture worked on the interior fit-out, while MUF Architecture/Arts designed the canal side area.

LLDC chair Daniel Moylan said: “The White Building is an example of how we are already delivering an Olympic legacy now.”

Approval for Southend Museum proposals

Councillors have approved a £35m project which includes a new museum for Southend.

The scheme is to be undertaken in two phases, with the first involving stabilising the cliffs at a site to the south of Clifftown Parade Gardens.

A second phase will include the AEW Architects-designed museum, which will boast more than 10,000sq m (107,639sq ft) of space for its permanent displays. A restaurant, a café and a shop will also form part of the building, with museum functions located over four floors.

Plans had been due to go before Southend-on-Sea Borough Council’s development control committee at an earlier date, but faced a last-minute challenge from a group of residents.

A council report said: “The proposed museum complex offers the opportunity to regenerate this area of the cliffs and seafront.”

£350m leisure plans for Newhaven?

A major £350m leisure development has been proposed for the site of the current Windsor Park stadium at the new stadium. The stadium will host a new boathouse at the Royal National Lifeboat Institution’s (RNLI) station in Mumbles – a “key feature” in the regeneration of Mumbles Pier.

Work has started on a £9.5m boathouse at the site of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution’s (RNLI) station in Mumbles – a “key feature” in the regeneration of Mumbles Pier.

Located at the head of the 113-year-old structure, construction of the building and slipway will complement a £39m leisure scheme planned by pier owner Ameco.

Ameco managing director John Bollom said: “The ability to work in partnership with the RNLI towards this end has been very much appreciated.”

Plans submitted for overhaul of Bournemouth site

Bournemouth Borough Council has submitted plans for the redevelopment of the Waterfront site into an outdoor events arena.

If planning permission is approved, the development will replace the current IMAX building, with the venue to host a number of cultural performances and sporting events. Seasonal activities are also proposed.

It is anticipated the arena will open ahead of summer 2013. Work to “de-construct” the IMAX building will start this autumn.

Hampton Architects to lead Belfast stadium team

Hampton Architects have been appointed by the Irish Football Association to lead the integrated consulting team for Northern Ireland’s National Stadium Project.

The Belfast-based design practice joins Edmond Shipway, Arup, Rider Levett Bucknall and Ben Veenbrink on working on the multi-million pound project.

Designs are to be drawn up for an 18,000-capacity venue on the site of the existing stadium at Windsor Park, with plans to be submitted by December.

Football stadium to form part of Grimsby scheme?

A community football stadium is among the facilities being planned as part of a new leisure development on a 22.7-hectare (56-acre) area of land in Grimsby.

North East Lincolnshire Council has agreed to give Simons Developments the next 12 months in which to investigate the viability of redeveloping the site.

The firm will work with Grimsby Town Football Club on drawing up the proposals, while it is also expected a retail facility will also form part of the project.

Cotswold District Council is inviting suitably qualified leisure and cultural services operators to express an interest in the pre-qualification selection process for the above contract.

Organisations wishing to be considered for selection to tender are required to complete a pre-qualification questionnaire (PQQ).

For more information and details of how to access the PQQ documentation and Information Memorandum, please contact Claire Locke, Head of Environmental Services Claire.locke@cotswold.gov.uk

THE CLOSING DATE FOR COMPLETED PQQS IS:
1PM ON MONDAY 3RD SEPTEMBER 2012.
Do you fancy the thrill of a trek of a lifetime to help others get their lives back on track? Springboard’s supporters are preparing to embark on the trip of a lifetime – the challenging Lares trail to Machu Picchu – in order to raise vital funds for the charity’s youth programmes.

The trek will take in remote Andean valleys – with stunning mountain vistas, dramatically changing landscapes and only local alpaca herders as company. Ending at the ancient Inca city of Machu Picchu, this will be a truly unforgettable experience!

It follows the fantastic success of the trek to the Great Wall of China in 2011, which supported the Into Work programmes that created talent pipelines across the industry, including hotels, restaurants and contract caterers. However, our work remains critical at a time when young people lack the belief and understanding about our industry to seize the opportunities open to them.

The goal is to raise £100,000 – which will continue the vital work of moving young, unemployed and disadvantaged people into employment within the industry. Springboard has a well-documented record of supporting these groups achieve their full potential by providing solutions that provide a real return on people’s investment.

This innovative way of raising funds for the charity ensures that we will be able to change the lives of at least 70 young people who need help to overcome the barriers in finding work. These barriers could include an offending background, long-term unemployment or the risk of homelessness. At a time when youth unemployment is at an all-time high, there has never been a more important reason to help the charity offer support to those who need it.

The trek presents the perfect opportunity to pledge support to a worthwhile cause and help the Lost Generation by journeying to the Lost City. For more information, contact Laureen at Springboard by calling direct on 020 7529 8610 or emailing: laureenw@springboarduk.org.uk

Les Mills introduces SH’BAM programme to UK market

Group exercise programme provider Les Mills has introduced its SH’BAM programming to the UK fitness market.

SH’BAM incorporates a range of simple dance moves and has been designed to allow people of all ability to take part.

Unlike other dance-inspired workouts that offer just one style of dance, SH’BAM combines basic dance choreography with a soundtrack of chart-topping hits, dance music, remixes of familiar classics and modern Latin tracks. Details: http://lei.sr?a=q3t3g

Fitbug launches new games platform

Fitbug Holdings, the AIM-listed provider of online personal wellbeing services, has launched its new Games Framework and iPhone app as an extension to fitbug.com, allowing users to increase exposure to the service.

Using Fitbug’s established Connected Health platform, the new Games Framework allows teams or individuals to compete against each other to complete virtual challenges.

The new capability encompasses Google map-based progress and hotspot graphics, Chatterbox and social media features, as well as team leader boards. It builds on Fitbug’s previous league challenge, Fantasy Footfall, and is part of the Fitbug games offering that can be customised to meet client requirements.

The Games Framework supports Fitbug’s corporate sales strategy of encouraging employee health and wellbeing – resulting in a reduction in direct medical costs.

Fitbug has also launched its first iPhone app, which allows Fitbug members to log physical activities and nutritional input, amend their goals and check their daily step progress.

Odeon to run BFI IMAX services

The British Film Institute (BFI) has appointed cinema operator Odeon to provide a range of services at the BFI IMAX at London Waterloo.

Odeon will begin offering programming services to the BFI IMAX, including the latest IMAX blockbusters and alternative content such as live opera, theatre and educational presentations.

The operator will also upgrade the cinema’s retail and bar offering, including the introduction of a Costa coffee shop and Yog frozen probiotic yoghurt bar.

Tickets will no longer be bookable via the BFI IMAX website or booking line, with all online services to be switched over to the Odeon website and booking systems.

Isle of Man firm proposes space passenger travel

Excalibur Almaz, the Isle of Man, UK-based commercial space transportation company, has announced plans to offer space passenger travel services – starting as early as 2015.

According to media reports, the firm told a space tourism meeting in London that it will cost £100m per person to embark on journeys orbiting the moon among others.

Excalibur Almaz already owns a number of flight-tested Reusable Re-entry Vehicles (RRVs) and two Salyut-class spacecraft.

New water ride for Center Parcs site

Center Parcs has announced plans to build a new £4m water ride at its Elveden Forest park in Suffolk, which is inspired by some of the world’s greatest “forces of nature”.

Tropical Cyclone is to replicate the experience of rafting along three rivers – South Africa’s Zambezi; Japan’s Naruto Whirlpools; and the Iguazu Falls in South America.

Proslide, SDC and Water Technology Inc are working with Center Parcs to create Tropical Cyclone, which is due to open in November.

It will transport guests in four-person, clover-shaped rafts and cater for 720 rafters per hour, with water flow reaching 25,000l (6,604gal) per minute. The ride will stand 18m (59ft) tall and features will include a 45-degree drop into a tornado funnel.

A Center Parcs spokesperson said: “The new £4m Tropical Cyclone water ride is the first of its kind created anywhere in the world and the ultimate family thrill experience.

“The ride is part of a longer term investment programme in the Subtropical Swimming Paradise across all Center Parcs UK villages.”
